What Happened to the Boys
Weather, Many Kinds
Kansas Philosophizes

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

NEWTON, Kan., April 20—Chicago interested in "what happened to [illegible] Adler and Frank Galell"—kidnaped then freed for cash. The two operated "Midnight Frolics" cabaret, [illegible] silent, wisely. If a Chicago [illegible] gets you, takes your money, lets you go, keep your mouth shut. Talks, if they "take you for a ride," and you don't come back. Some think the "missing boys" were kidnaped because they displayed "too big a roll." Others say they had neglected to pay their protection bills. The "Midnight Frolics," reports, were not 100 per cent dry [illegible] Chicago's police suggest that "Public Rats," gangsters from St. Louis, kidnaped the boys. St. Louis replies that Chicago needs no help of that kind.

Here, in wide wet open spaces of the middle west, the bootlegger does not take his brother for a ride and prohibition really works.

COMING through big Ohio farms yesterday on the Pennsylvania Manhattan Limited, bound for Chicago, ponds, big or little, indicated the low spots in the field. Here in Kansas the wide fields are enormous lakes, above which the Santa Fe fast train, The Chief, travels toward the Pacific on a high, heavily ballasted roadbed. The only important news out here is "flood news."

THE boiling muddy waters of the Mississippi rise higher and higher. Women and children are removed from danger, men remaining, piling up sand bags to protect weakened levees. The destruction of property will be great.

We intend to plod along here in our good old 1776 way. But if a Mussolini were running the country who doubts that he would use any amount of money, energy and engineering skill necessary to divert and store the dangerous waters near the source and use those waters on desert lands where they are needed? It is only a question of money, and we have that. This nation has lent eleven thousand millions in private loans to Europe recently, in addition to ten thousand millions lent by government in war excitement. Why not get excited about our own war of the waters?

THOSE that blame earth's troubles on the sun spots will be interested in the variety of weather demonstrations. Heavy rains, cloudbursts, hail, high wind storms and at Hale, Mo., "a twister" local name for a small cyclone—are included. The twister destroyed two blacksmith shops, damaged several buildings. Hay will be cheap this year, on the farms for crops will be heavy. After the farmer sells and the jobber gets the hay, prices will change.

Late plowing will be delayed, and wheat growers worry about a too-heavy "top growth." Wheat grown suddenly to tall falls before high wind or heavy rains, and, athletic young gentlemen please notice, when the wheat stalk is overdeveloped the head of the wheat containing the grain is feeble. Too much straw means too little wheat. And too much muscle means too little brain.

UNLESS inhabitants are misinformed, the western mind runs to peaceful philosophy. The Joplin News-Herald says, "As to street signs, read 'em and leap." And the Richmond Missourian quotes a philosophical lady as follows: "Kissing is about to be carried so far that everybody is likely to get so tired of it that it may go utterly out of fashion."

The St. Joseph (Mo.) News-Press says: "The girls have responded nobly to the appeal for the observance of paint-up week."

Vice-President's Cousin Jilted By Fiance, Near Collapse

Chicago, April 20—Miss Marian Dawes, cousin of the vice-president, was reported on the verge of a nervous collapse today following the runaway marriage of her fiance, Gordon Bilderback of Champaign.

Bilderback and Miss Dawes were to have been married April 30.

Monday night he visited Miss Gertrude Sergeant, University of Illinois instructor and his friend for the past year and a half. They decided to get married.

The ceremony was performed yesterday in the courthouse at Champaign and word of it reached Chicago while Miss Dawes was at the railroad station to greet the bridesmaids coming here for the wedding.

TWISTERS RIP THROUGH STATE, SPREAD TERROR

Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars Damage Done to Property, Is Estimate

TEACHER HEROINE

Seven Taken While Eating Dinner; Greene County Bears Brunt

Springfield, Ill., April 20—Twenty-one dead, 100 injured and hundreds of thousands of dollars property damage was the estimate today of the cost of the wave of tornadoes which yesterday ripped through Illinois, snuffing out lives and filling the hospitals with victims.

Workers today were seeking to end the chaos left in the path of the storm in the town and villages struck by the twisters.

Greene County bore the brunt of the cyclonic attacks with Carrollton as a center.

Killed at Dinner

A vicious tornado struck Wrights near Carrollton, snuffing out the lives of seven persons, eating their noonday meal, and then wrecked a schoolhouse—the Centerville school near Carrollton—killing the teacher, Miss Annie Keller, and injuring 11 pupils.

Miss Keller died a heroic death. Forcing her pupils to lie flat on the floor as the black funnel shaped cloud roared nearer, she braced her body against the door. After the storm had passed her bruised body was found.

Towns Blown Away

Only three houses were left standing in Buffalo Tart, also tornado-swept, where two persons were killed.

Many of the towns were practically blown away by the winds. The twisters swept in two main directions, north and south, and east and west, reaching nearly the length and breadth of the state. They were nothing more than strong winds when they reached Chicago and blew outward into Lake Michigan. Little damage was done in Chicago.

Relief expeditions were rushed to the stricken area from here and Chicago. As soon as news of the disaster reached Chicago, a relief train was organized. It carried doctors, nurses and large supplies of food, clothing and tents.

CONFESSES TO AIDING ESCAPE OF PRISONERS

Police Still Searching for Seven Dayton Jail Fugitives

Dayton, April 20—John Mundicks today confessed to Dayton police he had furnished the saws with which seven prisoners at the county jail cut their way to freedom at 10 o'clock last night, police declare. In his confession, detectives say, Mundicks declared one of the fugitives, James Grill, Dayton, promised to pay him $1,000 for assisting in the escape.

None of the fugitives had been captured at a late hour today.

According to Sheriff Wolf, the men made a rope of blankets and made their way from the second floor of the jail to a waiting automobile.

Five of six men who escaped from jail in January have since been recaptured.

Those who escaped are: John Grill, Dayton, awaiting trial for burglary; Lewis Hanks, Dayton, awaiting trial for burglary; Sidney Burtin, Dayton, awaiting trial for burglary; Stanley Smith, Tennessee, awaiting trial for violating the national motor law; Louis Igon, Cincinnati, possession of liquor; Edward Federle, Dayton, awaiting trial for robbery, and Louis Brun, Dayton, awaiting trial for burglary.

DROWNING VICTIM

Hamilton, April 20—Funeral arrangements were being made here today for Lester Parker, 7, who was drowned late Tuesday while wading in Four-Mile Creek, near here.

Snyder Murder Trial "Good Show"

Crowd gathered in front of the Queens County Courthouse, Long Island City, New York, where the Snyder-Gray murder trial is being held, with insets of Harry Judd Gray and Mrs. Ruth Snyder.

COURTHOUSE, LONG ISLAND CITY, April 20.—Amplifiers used in the Snyder murder trial are proving so effective, it is expected that the next great case probably will be broadcast.

For murder, it seems, must keep abreast with the times and play up to its public . . .

In the days before the Hall-Mills case, ordinary procedure was in order. . . . Styles changed at Somerville, N. J. . . . Dramatics, death masks, stretcher scenes were introduced. . . . That was all right for the small time. . . . But with murder getting its first big play of this year on the Big Time circuit came the added trimmings for the Snyder-Gray show.

Principals of "Show"

It is a show—with the principals playing the smallest part. . . . Perched on rails, sitting in box seats, are the big attractions. . . . They are the "trained seals" special celebrities "covering" the case for the leading newspapers and agencies. . . . Among them are a fundamentalist minister, a marquise whose ancestors formed the code of fox-fighting, a couple of playwrights, an actress, a philosopher. . . . A very democratic lot.

Next in importance comes the judge—an austere justice of the

NEW GOVERNMENT PLAN IS EXPECTED IN ITALY

Premier Mussolini May Be Chancellor on Bismarckian Pattern

London, April 20—Reports of the possibility of a proclamation creating Premier Mussolini as the first chancellor of Italy, being issued tomorrow on the anniversary of the founding of Rome, were current here today.

The reports, which are as yet unconfirmed, state that the chancellorship would be based upon the German Bismarckian pattern and that the chancellor would be responsible to the king and not to the parliament. The cabinet at the same time would be responsible to the chancellor and might be dismissed by him at will.

One report is that the proclamation will also create "the empire of Italy."

OUTLINES COMMISSIONERS' RIGHTS REGARDING DITCHES

Columbus, April 20—County commissioners have a legal right to construct and improve ditches, lying wholly within the county, over their entire course, no matter whether such ditches pass into, or through a municipality, according to a ruling given today by Attorney General E. C. Turner to Prosecuting Attorney Elmer L. Godwin, Bellefontaine.

Permanent Burial of Former Marion Couple Will Be in Local Cemetery

Arrangements have been completed for transferring the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Franz, former Marion residents, to Marion Cemetery from Jacksonville, Fla., where the body of Mr. Franz has been interred since his death 16 years ago and where Mrs. Franz was laid to rest on Jan. 7, 1926. The bodies are expected to arrive here the afternoon of May 4 and will be taken to the family burial lot at Marion Cemetery, which is the last resting place of Mrs. Franz's mother and other relatives. Arrangements for transfer from the Jacksonville Cemetery were recently completed by the three surviving children of Mr. and Mrs. Franz all of whom reside in Jacksonville.

Removal of the bodies will be an event of nationwide interest, due to the fact that Mrs. Franz was formerly worthy grand matron of the Order of the Eastern Star, the highest national office of that organization. She occupied this station from 1922 to 1925 and during that time achieved unusual

BENCHES OR BUST

Michigan Students Arm Themselves With Boxes in School War

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 20—The Bench war at the University of Michigan was on today with renewed vigor.

Hundreds of revolting students appeared armed with small boxes in protest of the recent action of the faculty in removing senior benches along the campus walk, after co-eds' parents complained of remarks to co-eds by the bench warmers.

Yesterday the students sought to beat the faculty by lining the walk with boxes and barrels, but all these were carted off by a big truck. Today the rebels were carrying their own soap boxes.

SECOND JUROR SEATED IN SNYDER-GRAY TRIAL

Story That Alleged Murderer Will Recite Love Experiences Denied

Court House, Long Island City, N. Y., April 20—The second juror in the Snyder-Gray murder trial was chosen this morning. He was Charles B. Meissner, a landscape gardener of Springfield, Queens County.

Just before court opened, William J. Millard, counsel for Gray, denied a published story to the effect that Gray would take the stand and tell the story of four women he had courted.

Mrs. Snyder seems worn by the strain of the trial, but she was as alert and interested as ever. Gray sat inert and listless in his chair, surrounded by lawyers.

Meissner, second of the twelve who will decide the fate of Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray, corset salesman, accused of the murder of the woman's husband, Albert Snyder, was escorted to a seat behind William E. Young, foreman of the jury. Meissner and Young grinned at each other, as Meissner took his seat.

Meissner was the ninety-first talesman to be examined.

Variety of Weather Given Marion; Mercury Goes to 81

DR. JEKYLL, Mr. Hyde had nothing on Mr. Weatherman.

Yesterday Marion sweltered in 81 degree heat. Today it shivered in the forties and tonight frosts will send dads scratching to the coal bins.

And more than that, Marion residents, who chanced to be awake about 11:30 o'clock last night had visions of a cyclone when a stiff but brief gale rattled windows, clattered shutters and blew twigs slapping against houses. A check-up showed that the miniature twister did no damage.

According to weather records, yesterday's mark of 81 is one of the highest temperatures recorded on April 19 in many years.

During the night the temperature dropped to 56 degrees. It continued to fall slowly during the day. Local weather prophets anticipate a drop to near the freezing level tonight.

A year ago Marion experienced a similar cool spiell with the thermometer showing a high temperature of 62 and a low mark of 26, six degrees below the freezing level.

More rain is on the bill for Thursday according to the forecast. Tonight, however will be fair, and several hours of good music are anticipated by radio bugs.

MARION LAWYER CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT

Howard A. Stevens Accused of Taking $9,294 from Charles F. Ritter Estate

ARRESTED AT HOTEL

He and Attorney Issue Statement Declaring Defendant is Innocent

Howard A. Stevens, Marion attorney and former city clerk, is accused in an affidavit filed in municipal court with having embezzled $9,294.73 from the estate of the late Charles F. Ritter of Mental while serving as executor of Mr. Ritter's will.

Stevens was taken into custody at his room at Hotel Harding shortly after 1 o'clock this morning and held at the city prison until 10 o'clock, when he was released until Apr. 26 by Municipal Judge William R. Martin under bond of $1,000.

The case was continued until Apr. 26 when Judge Martin learned that a recent order issued in probate court gave Stevens until that date to file his final account and turn over all funds in his hands as executor of the Ritter will.

Says He Is Innocent

Asserting that he is entirely innocent of any wrongdoing, Stevens retained the law firm of Mouser, Young & Mouser to represent him in the proceedings. This morning following Stevens' release under bond, Grant D. Mouser, Sr., one of the accused's attorneys, issued a statement defending his client and representing that he is the victim of a misunderstanding and that he will finally be exonerated.

Mouser also stated that his client will file his executor's account in probate court before the date set by probate court and also will pay over all funds of the estate.

Stevens' arrest was preceded by appointment of G. Earr Earle, local insurance agent, as administrator of the Ritter estate. Stevens' service as executor terminated as the result of an official order issued in probate court last week.

Instructed To Appeal

Stevens, according to the court records, had been instructed by Probate Judge McNeal to appear and show where funds which he claimed to have in his possession were deposited. He failed to show up at the time set for this accounting, it is alleged, and his removal as executor followed.

The amount of the alleged embezzlement is based upon figures given by Stevens in the first account filed by him as executor. John H. Clark, attorney for the Ritter heirs, stated today.

Clark represents relatives of Ritter, most of whom reside in Kansas City, who are to receive any balance left in the estate after payments of special bequests are made. The will provided that the widow, Mrs. Ritter, should receive income from the estate during her life and that at her death $1,000 should go to Howard A. Stevens, $1,000 to Stevens' two minor children, $1,500 to John Buck a farmer living near

MEXICAN BANDITS BURN ALL ON TRAIN, REPORT

Every Passenger Said To Have Perished in Atrocity; Victims Not Identified

Mexico City, April 20—Reports of a horrible atrocity, in which many persons were burned to death, were received this afternoon.

The Guadelajara express to Mexico City was reported to have been held by bandits, who closed all the doors and exits of the train and then set it afire.

The first reports received at the office of the president declared that not a single passenger had escaped.

First reports did not state whether any foreigners were among the passengers on the train.

Thieves Make Away With 200-Pound Holstein Calf

A HOLSTEIN calf, weighing more than 200 pounds, and an $80 set of brass-mounted work harness, early today were added to the growing list of property stolen in a series of robberies from Marion County farms.

The calf was stolen from the A. T. Redd farm, eight miles southwest of the city on the Green Camp pk early this morning. The loss was discovered when the mother of the calf set up a loud mooing for her stolen offspring.

Tracks in the soft earth between the road and the barn lot where the calf was quartered and along the side of the road indicated that three men had participated in this robbery and that the living loot was carted away in a Ford truck.

Tracks at the fence around the barn lot and along the highway indicated that the calf had been lifted over the enclosure and into the waiting truck.

The set of harness was taken from the barn on the farm of Ralph Sappington, eight miles west of the city on the Harding Highway. It is believed that this robbery also was staged early this morning, probably by the trio which visited the Redd farm.

FIREMEN RESCUE GIRL FROM CLIFF

Cleveland, April 20—With 20 husky men holding the ropes, Alpine fashion, Capt. L. E. Fielding and Lieut. Arthur Quane, of the Cleveland Fire Department, were lowered to a ledge 100 feet down on the face of a rock river cliff to rescue Rita Reilly, 11, who had broken both wrists in a fall. The little girl had been playing on the cliff when she slipped and tumbled over the brink. She had been standing on the ledge almost an hour before a plan of rescue could be effected.

VIC THREATENS TO RUN AGAIN ON ROAD PLANK

Declares He'll "Get People Out of Mud" in Reply to Gravel Expense Attacks

Columbus, April 20—Legislative leaders today had under consideration the threat of Gov. Vic Donahey to run for a fourth term as governor of Ohio, if the Ohio Legislature hampered joint plans of the governor and Highway Director George Schlesinger for improving approximately 820 miles of mud road throughout the state by using gravel during the 18-months' fiscal period beginning July 1, next.

This proposed improvement, it was estimated, will cost about $2,500,000.

After members of the senate finance committee asked Schlesinger for a budget of expenditures for road maintenance and repair, the highway director complied, under protest. This budget contemplates an expenditure of about $18,000,000 during the 18-months period, beginning July 1, next, the funds coming from gasoline taxes and auto license tag fees, it was stated.

Will Go to People

Commenting upon the action of the committee, Donahey declared that, if gravel road construction is prevented he will "go to the people with the question of whether, or not, they want my progressive gravel road policies carried out" by becoming a gubernatorial candidate for a fourth term.

"I am going to see that the people are gotten out of the mud," the governor said.

Schlesinger said Sen. A. G. Algier, Huron County, member of the senate finance committee, told him there "had been criticism of the amount spent for gravel roads."

Although a sub-committee, of which Algier is head, is credited with indicating its approval, for the most part, of the highway budget, it is yet to be passed upon by the full committee.

SAYS SMITH'S REPLY HAS POPE'S APPROVAL

Vatican Makes No Official Comment; Refuses To Meddle in Internal Politics

Rome, April 20—The statement of Gov. Alfred E. Smith relative to his Catholicism and its possible effect upon his ability to fulfill the duties of president of the United States, has been received with great satisfaction at the vatican, it was learned today.

The vatican did not deem it fitting to make official comment, but a high official of the vatican informed the International News Service that the reply had been brought to the attention of the pope and had gained his approval.

"You can say that the pope welcomes Governor Smith's clear statement," said the vatican official. "It must be pointed out that being a Catholic cannot in any way hinder anybody having responsibility and power. On the contrary, the character of Catholicism contributes to the loyalty and sincerity of ideas, which is fundamental for those on whose shoulders have been placed the burden of government.

"On the other hand, it is well-known that the vatican makes a strict rule of never meddling in internal politics of single states, especially the United States, where all presidents have always granted the fullest freedom to the Catholic Church."

The plane in which De Pinedo flew across the Atlantic from Africa to South America, traveling thence to the United States, was destroyed by fire at Lake Roosevelt in Arizona when a boy carelessly threw a cigaret upon the oil covered water near the machine. RUNAWAY TEAM DRAGS HEAVY TOOL OVER BODY

George Will, 72, Farmer, Near Upper Sandusky, Is Accident Victim

HORSES STAND GUARD

Grim Story Unfolded with Discovery of Railroad Section Crew

The grim story of a battle for life with a runaway team was unfolded early today when section hands found the lifeless body of George Will, 72, in a field on his farm, four miles west of Upper Sandusky.

Sustaining a broken neck and crushed chest when the heavy farm roller was pulled over his body by the frightened horses, Will, apparently, had died instantly.

Breaking their ties to the implement, the horses were loose in the field during the night and this morning, their manner changed, were standing guard over the body, when men working on the Pennsylvania railroad nearby were attracted to the scene.

Tracks Tell Story

Hoofprints and the presence of the roller near the body revealed the futile attempts the aged farmer made to halt the plunging team.

Coroner L. W. Naus pronounced death due to injuries received in accident after viewing the body and scene this morning.

No attention was drawn by Will's absence last night as he lived alone. He was a native of Germany and had taken up his residence in Wyandot County at the age of 15. Surviving are the widow, Katherine, one daughter, Mrs. Philip Lautenslager, west of Upper Sandusky, one son, Walter, Detroit, three sisters, Mrs. Peter Bessinger and Mrs. Conrad Baker, of Upper Sandusky and Mrs. Elmer Cope, north of here, and two brothers, Henry, Marion County and John, north of here.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been announced.

MUSICAL COMEDY STAR DIES FOLLOWING FIGHT

Husband of Dorothy Mackaye Triangle Victim; Police Believe

Los Angeles, April 20—The body of Ray Raymond, musical comedy star, awaited an autopsy in the morgue today. Paul Kelly, juvenile screen star, was held in jail on a charge of suspicion of murder and Dorothy Mackaye, Raymond's wife and a well-known actress, was under a physician's care—the aftermath, according to police, of a love affair.

The wife, Dorothy Mackaye, has admitted her friendship for Kelly, a friendship her husband wished her to cease, according to police.

When Kelly came to Raymond's home in Hollywood, Saturday, according to Ethel Lee, the maid, Raymond asked him where Mrs. Raymond was.

"Mr. Kelly then knocked Mr. Raymond down three or four times," Miss Lee said. "Before Kelly left he hit Raymond another heavy blow. Mr. Raymond was bleeding from the head."

When a physician was called Sunday afternoon, Raymond was still unconscious. He was taken to a hospital and died there yesterday morning. His death was caused by internal hemorrhages according to physicians.

Raymond and his wife were married seven years ago. Both were playing in a N. Y. York production at the time.

Raymond's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Cederbloom, live at Forest Hills, N. Y. Mr. and Mrs. John Mackaye, the wife's parents, reside in Denver.

IN CLEVELAND?

Police Believe Slayer of World War Veteran Hiding in City

Cleveland, April 20—That the slayer of John C. Compton, Jr., beaten and kicked to death in a shack near Cuyahoga Falls, is hiding in this city, is the belief of city and county authorities today.

The suspect's wife, arrested with her 15-year-old son, upon their return to the shack, where they had been making their home, told detectives her husband planned to stay in a rooming house in Cleveland, before leaving for New Castle, Pa.

According to police, the woman admitted witnessing a fight between her husband and Compton Sunday night and said Compton was knocked to the floor unconscious and then kicked in the head.

Compton was a World War veteran and was employed by the Webb C. Ball Co. here as a clock-maker.

Paris, April 20 — George Cormier, French balloonist, who had been missing since he ascended last Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Franco-Belgian flight, is safe, said a dispatch to the Aero Club of France today. He landed on Sunday near Montardit, in the province of Lerida, Spain, having crossed the Pyrenees Mountains.

Maybe Alabama Will Vote for Huddleston This Time

Correspondent Believes Representative Logical Candidate for President

WASHINGTON, April 20.—For the life of me, I can't see why Rep. George Huddleston of Alabama isn't the logical, and about the only logical, Democratic candidate for president.

Unless you live in his neck of the woods or know Capitol Hill tolerably well, you probably never heard of him.

That's because he's in such an infinitesimal minority,—the only Democrat who is a democrat, in congress.

WE must distinguish between the word "Democrat," a party label, and a "democrat," meaning a believer in certain political principles.

The trouble with the Democratic party is that it has lost most of its democratic principles. Some Democrats have lost some of them and some have lost others. Some have lost most of them and some have lost only a few.

But you can't depend on 'em to stick together.

THE Republican party is superficially split up, too.

In the first place, however, the Republicans are split only into a couple of factions. Each individual Republican isn't a faction unto himself, as among the Democrats.

Furthermore, there are certain basic republican principles upon which Republicans always all are united.

FOR example, there's the protective tariff principle. The progressive Republicans may think protection has been overdone but they believe in the principle.

The vote on the McNary-Haugen bill demonstrated it. The bill embodied the protection principle.

True, a lot of protectionists opposed it, on the ground that it was an unwise application of that principle. As for the progressive Republicans, they voted for it to a man, because they didn't consider it unwise and they did believe in protection. Numerous Democrats also voted for it, thereby proving that their free trade principles had gone completely flooey.

But Huddleston? According to all rules of political policy he ought to have been for that bill, but Huddleston's a democrat, hence a free trader in principle, so he voted against it.

HUDDLESTON'S a prohibitionist. Being an Alabama congressman, you'd expect him to be.

To be sure, the democratic states' rights principle and national prohibition are hard to reconcile. Still, you can't expect a politician to be consistent all the time, and, with his seat in the house of representatives depending on it—

But no!

Huddleston voted against the Eighteenth Amendment.

WHILE they're talking about a good wet-and-dry compromise candidate, what's the matter with George Huddleston?—who could have argued with Senator Borah and Dr. Nicholas Butler at the same time, and beaten both of 'em.

Oh yes, he comes from the rather remote state of Alabama, but so does Senator Underwood, who hasn't always been considered a presidential impossibility.

As for the kind of campaign he'd put up—well, after taking care of himself for twelve years, single handed, in the house of representatives, anybody who thinks he isn't a scrapper has another guess coming.

And think what a novelty it would be to have a real democrat as a Democratic candidate.

The idea's ridiculous, of course, but it does seem logical.

The Pennsylvania switch near the W. Center-st crossing, which was demolished when the car in which Mr. and Mrs. William Drake were riding was struck Friday afternoon has been repaired and is now in working order. The Drake machine was carried across the switch, taking the light and signal with it.

Web-Tread Tractors Again Go to War But This Time in Ohio Corn Fields

Bottom—Two-ton tractor plowing under corn stubble.

Marion County Farmers Cooperating in Drive To Exterminate Pest

The tractor is again going to war, but this time the enemy is the corn borer and the battle ground is the corn fields of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Pennsylvania and New York.

Marion County lies in the war zone and farmers in this community are cooperating with state and federal forces in a program to rid fields of this pest. Banks Collings is the man in charge of the work in Marion County.

The government is paying a maximum of $2 an acre to all farmers in the infested area whose corn fields are properly cleaned up by May 1. Many Marion County farmers expect to collect the maximum, a survey of the work done already in the county shows.

Weather Handicap

Handicapped by inclement weather and a large amount of rain which has made it impossible for the farmer to get into his fields to plow the corn stubble under only about 15 per cent of the work mapped out for here this summer has been accomoplished, according to Mr. Collings.

One of the most effective control measures is clean plowing, but the job must be done thoroughly so that every stock is covered.

This plowing does not destroy the borer, but causes the pest to leave the corn stalk which was buried by plowing and come to the surface of the ground, where they are the prey of birds and other natural enemies and are also destroyed by exposure to the sun.

Suggest Discing

Any piece of corn stalk remaining on the surface will act as a convenient shelter for the migrating borer. Corn fields should, in some cases, be disced before plowing, or the standing stalks, or stubble broken down by pulling a heavy drag, such as a railroad iron across the rows.

It is important that the plows be properly adjusted, so as to completely cover all corn stalks. In many cases, this means the use of a combination jointer-coulter, or some other special device for covering trash. Plows should be in first-class condition, that is, shares sharp with proper suction, coulters properly set so as not to rub against the plow bottom and wheels propery adjusted so as to take as much of the sliding friction as possible from the land side of the plow.

Full Even Cut

Attention should be given to the hitch of the plow, so that it takes a full even cut and the wheels should be adjusted so that both bottoms cut evenly.

In this battle with the corn borer, it is more important that the corn stubble be turned under early than it is to wait for the most suitable time for plowing. The tractor has proved its ability to negotiate the wet spots in the corn fields, just as its relative, the tank negotiated the shell holes on other battle fields.

The manager of Senator James A. Reed's presidential campaign is said to have started a chain letter system to accomplish the senator's nomination. A Chicago "investigator" says that American humor, never very high, is growing lower and lower, and that nasty stories once heard in the smoking compartment are now told in mixed gatherings, being "trotted out at the best dinner tables without even causing a gasp." We do not get the connection between humor and nasty stories, but possibly we might had we forsaken association with decent people to accompany this investigator in his survey of the gatherings which manifestly were very badly mixed.

Hardly Good Sports.

The Minneapolis Tribune a few days ago published a communication from a Mr. Charles J. Berry, who, we judge from an editorial comment, is quite well known to that newspaper and esteemed by it, which is worthy of honest consideration by all college youths who feel that their disinclination to undergo military training is ample warrant for abolishing it. The letter refers to such youths in the University of Minnesota, but it will apply with equal force to youths in all state-maintained institutions of learning, including those here in Ohio.

Mr. Berry makes other points, but there are two which we feel college youth opposed to military training will have some difficulty in meeting. The first is that university military drill already is optional, for the reason that university attendance is optional, in that no youth is compelled to enter the state university up there. If any boy or young man prefers a school at which military drill is not compulsory, there are many such he can enter. The second point scored by him is in reply to the contention of an earlier correspondent, who set out that military training is of no value to those who take it unwillingly because they refuse to apply themselves to it. If any considerable number of students take this attitude, Mr. Berry holds, they are not playing fair with the state which is expending enormous amounts for their education.

"These boys," he continues, "having entered the university voluntarily and with their eyes open, and privileged to withdraw at any time they so desire, certainly are under a moral obligation to make serious effort to do the best they can in every line of university work with which they are concerned. And university work includes drill. Purposely doing poor work in a disliked branch comes close to sabotage."

The people of Ohio are expending millions upon millions annually to maintain and operate institutions of learning. Those who enter them are supposed to follow their rules and regulations. If it is the sentiment of the majority of the people of Ohio that such rules and regulations are wrong, then they should be changed, but they should not be changed upon the sentiment of those students who accepted them by entering such universities. Youths who rebel against conditions which they voluntarily accept can hardly be denominated fair. Sportsmanship would impel them to go through with the contract they take on by their entrance into such institutions.

Exceptions to the Rule.

From time to time we read in newspapers, books and magazines that the average span of life is growing longer. It is. There can no longer be question of it. But let us get the thing right. More people are attaining major years than ever before. More people are reaching middle age. Infant mortality is almost immeasurably less. What's the result? The age at which the average person dies is greater than it ever was in the recorded history of the world. But this does not necessarily mean that population considered, more people are reaching extreme ages now than in the past. The average is one proposition; the individual is another. Investigation will show, has shown, that while more of us are attaining mature years, about the same proportion, population being taken into account, are attaining extreme old age. Man's allotted time is still pretty close to the Biblical three score and ten.

There are exceptions. Of course there are. There were exceptions, also, 100 years ago, and 200 years ago, and, away back in Biblical times. And it's very probable the exceptions of today are exceptions for very much the same reason that the exceptions of 100, or 200 or 2,000 years ago were exceptions; because of exceptional hardihood and temperance in thought, act and living. Let us keep in mind that the men of eighty, ninety or 100 today, had few of the advantages during the most critical times of their lives which science has given us in the last thirty or forty years.

One day last week, ninety-three-year-old Moses Hooper, of Oshkosh, Wisconsin, appeared before the United States supreme court in Washington and argued for an hour before Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, who is eighty-seven. Hooper has been actively engaged in the practice of the law for the past seventy years. After arguing his case, he left for Philadelphia and New York to do some sightseeing before driving back to Oshkosh, as he went to Washington, by automobile.

Mentally alert, seemingly possessed of the physical vigor of a man thirty or forty years his junior, Hooper spoke for an hour without notes. It was only through a reference made by him to a former appearance before the same court forty years earlier that his extreme age becomes known to the court and the facts herein stated were brought out by questioning on the part of the court.

This son of Maine, who for seventy years has been a resident of Wisconsin, attributes his exceptional vigor to athletic exercises during his youth and an abundance of fresh air with a holiday every Saturday afternoon. He laughed at the suggestion of any particular formula for long living.

We hope the reader gets our idea in offering this illustration. There are similar cases today; there have been similar cases for centuries in the past.

The Philadelphia Record remarks that "our embassy in the city of Mexico evidently needs some locks." From the mystery thrown about the forging of diplomatic papers, a really suspicious man might get the notion that the embassy staff down there is in need of a little renovating.

The Michigan house has passed a bill legalizing the issuance of search warrants upon affidavits that liquor was smelled. If it becomes a law, it is easy to assume that henceforth all dry enforcement officials will be recruited exclusively from those possessed of a pronounced sense of smell.

"I expected it," said Ramsay McDonald, at present visiting in this country, in commenting on his turning-down as treasurer of the Independent Labor party over in England. "They are angry with me because I don't go out on the housetops and shout socialism." And here we have the weakness of Socialism. One must be a radical to retain the support of the element which is in control.

Florida is up in arms over the proposal of a well-known fraternal order to establish a home for the indigent down there. Little wonder! It would be hard to think of anything that would appeal less to the Florida realtors and hotel managements than people without money.

Mayor Thompson welcomed Eamonn De Valera to Chicago, a day or two ago, after they had been introduced as "William Hale Thompson, Eamonn De Valera — the two greatest enemies of the British empire." If they possess the slightest sense of humor, both of them must have smiled.

A paragraph in "Twenty Years Ago" yesterday told about Mt. Colima being in violent eruption, while a wire from Mexico City told about a battle fought between federal troops and revolutionists in the sulphurous smoke blown down upon them from the same mountain. It might look like something of a coincidence until it is recalled that for the last three-quarters of a century Colima has been active pretty much all the time.

Vagrant Verse.

THE FLOWER FACTORY.

Lisabetta, Marianna, Fiametta, Teresina,
They are winding stems of roses, one by one, one by one.

Little children, who have never learned to play;
Teresina softly crying that her fingers ache today;
Tiny Fiametta nodding when the twilight slips in, gray.
High above the clattering street, ambulance and fire-gong beat,
They sit, curling crimson petals, one by one, one by one.

Lisabetta, Marianna, Fiametta, Teresina,
They have never seen a rosebush nor a dewdrop in the sun.

They will dream of the vendetta, Teresina, Fiametta,
Of a Black Hand and a face behind a grating;
They will dream of cotton petals, endless, crimson, suffocating.
Never of a wild-rose thicket nor the singing of a cricket,
But the ambulance will bellow through the wanness of their dreams,
And their tired lids will flutter with the street's hysteric screams.

Lisabetta, Marianna, Fiametta, Teresina,
They are winding stems of roses, one by one, one by one,
Let them have a long, long playtime, Lord of Toil,
when toil is done,
Fill their baby hands with roses, joyous roses of the sun!

ANOTHER PROMINENT STUMP SPEAKER.

Adam's Ale Gaining as Drink.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

There is hardly a thing relating to personal hygiene which is not debated or debatable. One such matter is the quantity of water which should be taken every day.

A newspaper dispatch states that the National Safety council will serve each of its employes with a glass of water every hour. This is one feature of a health campaign being conducted by this organization.

Another arrangement is to provide a five-minute recess at 3 o'clock. This permits every employe to relax a bit in the middle of the afternoon. Undoubtedly, the practice will increase the efficiency of the workers.

I have told you before of a cash bonus offered by this corporation to such of its employes as promise to walk an hour every day. It is said that more than half of them are claiming the bonus.

"Passing the water" was the universal practice in the public schools when I was a boy. We shudder now to think of the germs passed about on the dipper of that day.

Years ago in New England, I recall that the brakeman on the local passenger train used to pass water in a similar way. With the demand for the individual cup all such customs have passed into history.

Almost everybody should drink more water. Unless there is real thirst, we don't think about it. But in addition to the water we get at meal-time in the food, or as a beverage, we do not need a half dozen glasses. The plan of the National Safety council will provide just about this quantity.

Of course, you can drink too much water, but this extreme is rarely practised. In heart and kidney diseases it may be unwise to take quite such quantities. But if you have a disease of one of these organs you will know it, and your doctor will be advising you about water drinking, as well as other habits.

Food cannot be useful without water. Until it goes into solution the food elements are as useless to you as they would be if left on the table. You must drink enough fluid to bring about the necessary dissolving of the things you eat.

Likewise, the poisons and waste which should be carried away by the kidneys and intestines, are retained in the system unless there is water enough to dissolve or moisten them. There can not be proper elimination without an abundance of fluids.

Why not follow the example of the National Safety council and have somebody bring you a glass of water every hour? To drink this amount each day would go far toward promoting or retaining good health.

Editorial Comment.

THE FACTS.

A radical orator a week ago addressed a Cincinnati audience, telling them of the "criminal imperialism" of the United States and of the "oppressions" visited by this government upon such possessions as Haiti, Porto Rico, San Domingo and others.

In the first place, our "imperialism" is illustrated in the fact that this government maintains the smallest armed regular force of any sovereignty in the world. Hence the attacks made on civilian military training seem particularly ominous and irrational.

We maintain under arms no great army. We have no peace-time conscription. We never have had a militaristic policy. Our military provision hovers near minimum requirements. The hope of the national defense rests solely in the civilian training supplement to the small organized force of the regular army. Only a nation gone completely daft would do less than this in the interests of the national security. But influences both hysterical and hellish work steadily to discredit and injure the system of civilian military training. They will be defeated in their efforts only by the alertness and patriotism of true American citizens. No less today than in days of dire national stress should we sing, "The Army, the Navy Forever."

As for our "tyrannized" possessions, it may be interesting to hear what Dwight L. Davis, secretary of war, has to say about some of them. He has just returned from a visit to Porto Rico, Haiti and Panama, to say to President Coolidge that conditions in these territories are most encouraging, a conclusion arrived at after an intensive inspection.

Secretary Davis told the president that exceptionally good progress had been made by Porto Rico in building roads, schools and public buildings and in the eradication of disease. He found conditions equally good elsewhere.

Of course, Oswald Villard, Senators Borah and King, and the rest of the ranting friends of everybody and everything outside this United States, will declare Secretary Davis to be a liar, or a much deceived individual; but the public generally may take it that the secretary of war is quite a dependable young man, a capable official and a man who believes in America, its justice and unselfishness — in the validity and honesty of its metier as a helpful civilizing influence in the world.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

WITH SPRING COMES LAZINESS.

Each season has its delights and its virtues, thoroughly sung and resung to distraction. But what the poets have neglected is the fact that each has also its attendant vices. In the winter we cerainly become too giddy in the pursuit of temporal amusement, what with theaters, dances, this and that banquet, and the successive holiday celebrations from Thanksgiving on. Summer, too, has its errors, which need little reviewing: but spring encourages just one crowning vice, and that is laziness.

Humanity toils hard at inventing excuses for not working, and just when they are all wearing thin along comes the finest excuse of all—mild weather. The clouds dry up, the dust lies still, expansive warmth spreads over street and lane, and who could work in such a setting? Even the real estate brethren, whose best hay is made during these balmy spells, feel the weight of bliss heavy upon them and cease to worry about selling a-lot-a-minute. As for people in offices, they dawdle languidly over typewriter and desk, with their thoughts spinning dreams out in the sunshine.

This invidious springtime vice, although known to every worker, is carefully hidden and disguised by apologetic names such as "spring fever" or "run-down nerves." It is a cumulative failing, and gathers strength until it reaches a climax during vacation, after which it practically disappears. But from now on watch out. Every soft-blowing wind, each whiff of lilac, carries the dangerous temptation, and no one is immune.—Philadelphia Public Record.

MAKING A LIVING ISN'T LIFE.

Credit for the caption is due John D. Rockefeller, Jr. He inspired it in the contrast he has drawn between making a living and making a life. Mr. Rockefeller thinks running banks and managing great industries may sink to the level of merely making a living.

On the old, well-worn subject of capital and labor, or employer and employe, Mr. Rockefeller holds sane views. "For my part," he says, "I have long been profoundly convinced that in the very nature of things employers and employes are partners, not enemies, that their interests are common, not opposed, that in the long run the success of each is dependent upon the other."

That is becoming the more general attitude, which has taken long years and hard fighting to reach. The fighting, offensive and defensive, has not "made lives" on either side. Peace and a mutual understanding alone can do that.

When the representative of one of the greatest fortunes in the world uses his influence to bring about the better understanding the dawn of a better day in the work world is breaking.—Toledo Blade.

Youth Aping Age.

Instruction on the way to remain young is less needed than a system that would teach people to grow up.—Buffalo Evening News.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Somebody has said that later life is largely the working out of the ideas which came to us in our youth. That puts a lots of responsibility on those of us who are grown up, doesn't it? It's the responsibility of seeing that youth doesn't get the wrong leads from us.

If you really want to do something for somebody else, don't try to correct his faults. Correct your own. He will soon take notice.

Darrow would prove that man is a machine. The chemicals that make up the human body can be bought for ninety-eight cents. Man behaves, functions like a machine, Darrow says. Every man is, himself, the best answer to that argument. Are you no better than a machine? Are the impulses that you have, the impulses of a machine? Have you no faith, is there no kingdom of the spirit, do you never rise above considerations of profit and power and pleasure? "Know thyself," said the philosopher. Know thyself and you will know all.

Somebody has said there is only one brand of greatness—and that is the ability to do good. That is not definition enough. There is plenty of ability to do good. Functioning by inconvenient effort is something else.

Mark Twain was pretty much right when he said that we can't reach old age by another man's road. Don't let somebody else live your life for you. All you really have in this life is a certain ability for self-expression. If you are not in the place where you can express something of yourself in your work and daily life, you should be looking about for a change. That change is not always a change of circumstance. It may be that a change of self is more needed.

The ability of the human being to struggle is not always an unmixed blessing. Some things are cured by being let alone. Retirement is sometimes progress toward peace.

Dinner Stories.

Possibly he wasn't an official New Orleans guide, but he held the little group of tourists spellbound by his tales of the Cabildo and the Pontalba buildings and the old Cathedral. And then somebody noticed the big gun in Orleans alley.

"What is that?" he asked the guide.

"That?" informed the guide with a look of condescending surprise on his face. "Why, that's what they used during the Spanish domination to canonize the saints."

A little Scotch boy, having become an uncle at the age of four, was taken to see the new baby. "What's she saying, Sandy?" asked his sister, as the infant made the usual gurgling noises.

Sandy cast a wary and inquiring eye around the room and then replied: "She's sayin': 'Gie Sandy an apple'."

"What sort of people have taken the estate for the season?" asked the family solicitor of the head game-keeper.

"Men of their word, sir," was the reply. "They promised to send all they shot to the hospital, and two beaters have been admitted already."

"When I proposed to the dear girl she fell on my shoulder and sobbed like a baby, but finally she put her arms about my neck and—"

"Yes, I know all about it. I rehearsed it with her."

Today's Worst Story.

BY WILL ROGERS

There's been a lot of publicity given by the ad writers to the lady that tells her man on the way home that she's ashamed of him because he didn't have a lot of wise cracks out of Abe Martin's almanac to startle the guests with. Sometimes the ad writers have the young husband hawling his bride out for not speaking up in French and Spanish when his boss asked the waiter to pass the herring. Anyhow, it's all very puzzling in the ads, but in real life it ain't half so bad.

But there was a girl that took her new husband to her dad's house to eat his first dinner there, and her dad was a lawyer, so the poor boy, who was nothing but a vice-president of an automobile factory, was scared to talk for fear what he said might be used against him at the trial.

On the way home the wife says to him: "Why, dearie, I was kinda worried about you, setting there and not opening your maw to let out a word or two. I was afraid you was doing yourself dirt with the old man. Ain't you afraid he might think you was a dumbbell, setting there without letting out a yap?"

"Yep, I was kinda scared of that," he says.

"Then why didn't you talk?"

"Because I knowed he knew it by then," he says.—Copyright, 1927.

FORMAL MOTION FOR MISTRIAL IS PREPARED

Government Agents Probe Alleged Jury Scandal in Ford-Sapiro Case

Detroit, April 20—While government agents probed an alleged jury scandal, attorneys for Henry Ford today prepared a formal motion for a mistrial and a new start in the million dollar Ford-Sapiro libel suit. The motion will be presented to Federal Judge Fred M. Raymond when the trial is resumed tomorrow. There was a strong possibility the judge would grant the motion, although negotiations were said to be under way seeking an agreement to continue the trial with 11 jurors.

The court meanwhile continued an inquiry into the charges brought by Ford's attorneys against Mrs. Cora Huffman, one of the women jurors in the case. She was accused by the billionaire's counsel in a series of affidavits given the court of having fraternized with Jews during the trial after previously declaring she would oppose the auto king if chosen for the jury.

The investigation also involved J. Miller, a Jewish real estate salesman, who was named in the affidavits as having frequently conferred with Mrs. Hoffman. Both were reported to have denied any discussion of the case.

Charges To Be Aired

The charges will be aired tomorrow when Ford's counsel move for mistrial. At that time they will reveal all their evidence against Mrs Hoffman which might indicate she was prejudiced against Ford. The court then will decide whether the evidence justifies her disqualification as a juror.

The question of proceeding with only 11 jurors was said to have been raised at a conference between the judge and opposing counsel but no agreement was reached. Counsel for Ford said today they could not express an opinion on this subject while William H. Gallagher, Sapiro's chief counsel, said he "might be willing to proceed." If a mistrial is declared, court attaches said a new jury could be drawn at once and the new trial could start Friday.

Scalloped Bolero

The most distinctive part of the two-piece frock pictured here is the scallops. They edge the bolero and both tiers of the front and sides of the finely pleated skirt are finished in like manner.

Notice the tiny pocket in the bolero out of which a handkerchief peeps. A stitched belt, rhinestone buckle and pin and streamers of crepe complete the frock, which, by the way, is of georgette.

USE BIT OF RIBBON

Knitted wool sweaters are very likely to sag at the shoulders and in this way spoil their appearance. A bit of ribbon the length of the shoulder of the person from neck to armhole, attached securely at each end to the sweater will prevent this.

Menu Hints

Recipes for New and Novel Dishe; Household Ideas and Suggestions

SUPPOSE we have a regular English dinner next Sunday. We will have roast beef, Yorkshire pudding, baked potatoes, and a deep pie. And water cress will be the green. A rib roast or an English cut are nice for the roast. We will heat the oven, put the roast in and let it stand uncovered for half an hour, then add a bay leaf or two, a small onion, salt and pepper, and a little water—say half a cup of hot. Cover and let cook 15 minutes to the pound if you like your meat rather rare, 20 if you like it well done.

Roast Beef Yorkshire Pudding
Baked Potatoes
Water Cress Salad
Deep Rhubarb Pie Tea

TODAY'S RECIPES

Yorkshire Pudding—Beat together till smooth one cup of milk, one-half cup of flour, two eggs and one-fourth teaspoon of salt. Bake like pop-overs in cups, or in one shallow pan, basting several times with the fat from roast beef. Serve with the meat.

For a breakfast or luncheon dish add one-half cup of bits of meat from a roast and serve with any left over gravy or tomato sauce.

Deep Rhubarb Pie—Wash rhubarb thoroughly a 1 cut in inch long pieces. Line the top of the inside of a baking dish with a strip of good pie crust. Fill the dish with the cut rhubarb, seasoning with sugar and bits of butter. Put on top crust, cut air holes and bake until thoroughly done. A tea cup without a handle or an egg cup inverted in the middle of the dish will keep the juice from running out. Flour may be mixed with the sugar to thicken the juice.

PARIS FAVORS GREEN FOR DAYTIME

Green for daytime wear is sponsored by Paris as interpreted by Lucien Lelong.

An afternoon frock for a young girl is pictured (left) by this designer. It is a simply made frock of dark green crepe de chine with gold eyelets made with a vest of cloth of gold.

Another afternoon dress by the same couturier (right) is of green silk voile printed with red, black and dark green.

The accessories worn with this dress are many pearls.

Girl is Told to Wait for Congenial, Attractive Man

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

CAN two people love one another deeply and still be unhappy when married? Can they be merely very good friends and thoroughly congenial in their tastes and live in wedded bliss without physical attraction?

WHAT do our readers think about this? Miss M writes to know my opinion.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: Here is my problem. I am courted by two men. One attracts me physically, but we are not particularly congenial. The other is not particularly attractive, but we have the happiest times reading and talking together and love all the same things. With which would I be happy? MISS M."

WHY marry either in the present state of your feelings? You had better wait until you find a man who is both congenial and attractive. Love—the kind that you have for the first man—may die if you have no tastes in common to nourish it. On the other hand, in spite of "minds attune," constant association may make the second man obnoxious to you.

"DEAR Mrs. Lee: I am a boy of 20 and very unhappy. The reason is, of course, my own fault, but I do not know what to do about it. Right now I am engaged to a girl whom I have to confess I do not love or at least I do not think I do. I did love her, before we became engaged, but now I've lost it. I wouldn't hurt her for the world by telling her but I feel that I must do something about it.

"Mrs. Lee this isn't the first time that I've found myself in this position, although this is the first time that I've gone so far as to get myself engaged. Every girl that I've loved in the past I've loved to desperation only it has not lasted. The girl to whom I am engaged is very sweet and I'm afraid that should I tell her it would hurt her dreadfully. She is looking forward so much to our marriage.

INCONSTANT WOOER."

BETTER "break her heart" now than marry her without love. You are too young to be engaged anyhow. And better avoid "moonlight and roses" with charming girls in future. You are too impulsive. Next time you feel inclined to propose—don't. Wait until morning. "Colors seen by candlelight (or moonlight) do not look the same by day," you know.

MRS. NEAL IS ELECTED RALLY REPRESENTATIVE

Mrs. Robert Neal was elected a special representative to the district rally of the Daughters of America to be held May 12 in Fostoria, at the meeting of members of Paramount Council, No 37 Daughters of America, last night in the Junior Order Hall. Two candidates were initiated and one application was balloted on.

Mrs. Walter Carder was awarded first honors in the membership contest which concluded last night and Mrs. Charles Arndt received second honors. The charter was draped in memory of Mrs. Mary Helen Jones. Announcement was made of the meeting of members of Harmony Circle Thursday night at the home of Mrs. W. F. Fowler, Silver-st. The next regular meeting of the council will be May 3.

Liquor may not inspire a poem, but certainly soda water doesn't.

Speaker Defends Modern College Girl in Address

"I believe the modern American college girl is earnestly seeking for the development of life in the fullest," declared Miss Margaret Fifield, secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association in addressing members of the Marion Association of University Women at their dinner meeting last night at Hotel Harding. More individuality, a development of sincere personality and less standardization on the campus were pointed out by the speaker as outstanding needs in college life today.

Miss Fifield discussed her topic, "What I Think of Modern College Girls," with the keen insight of one who has had the experience of contact with life on the college campus and a broadmindedness through association with girls in her position as Y. W. C. A. secretary. The talk was preceded by a delightful dinner at which covers were placed for more than 30 members and guests. Mrs. Charles W. McClain, president of the organization introduced the speaker.

Raps Spirit of Daring

Miss Fifield believes in the old-fashioned idea of charm and declared that "women are losing a great deal today by doing the things men do in a spirit of bravado and daring. The modern American Girl will have to find again and reestablish in herself charm and personality.

"It is surprising how many girls walk alike, talk alike, cultivate a similarity in dress and what is more lamentable so many girls think alike" the speaker stated. She cited organization and group life as two factors responsible for standardization in college life.

Largeness of spirit in taking people for what they are worth and being glad for the opportunities are two qualities needed on the college campus, Miss Fifield declared. "We talk a lot about being sincere, a lot of girls are trying to be sincere but often it is a sincerity used to gain a certain end," she said. "What the college women today have to have is a development of sincere personality and there is in the heart of the modern college girl a desire to find life in the fullest."

Miss Wires asked, following her talk, in regard to the much-mooted question of girls smoking Miss Fifield stated that while she believed the practice was growing it was not so bad as people would have us believe. In discussing the problem with girls in school Miss Fifield stated she pointed out, not that it was something terribly wrong but that at this particular time when they needed their health and mentality for themselves for life, it was not wise thing to do to bind themselves to such a habit.

CLASSES WILL PURCHASE SUNDAY SCHOOL CHAIRS

It was decided to purchase chairs for the Sunday School room of Emanuel Lutheran Church at the meeting of members of the Ladies and Men's Bible Classes held in the church basement last night. Miss Jane Ferree entertained with a piano solo and recitation. Luncheon was served and a social hour enjoyed. Approximately 75 were in attendance including a number of guests. The next meeting will be held May 17 at the church.

What Has Gone Before

Home of PROF and MOLLIE ELWELL in Camdenville, one night in October, 1898, they find a woman who had fainted on a train. That night she bears twins and dies without revealing her name.

Story then moves forward 18 years. The twins, now growing to young womanhood, have been christened and named MARAGARET ELIZABETH. They are called PEGGY and BETTY.

JIM ELWELL, the son, enlists in the World War. He then disappears. Later one of the twins loves him.

Jim is shell-shocked at the Battle of Verdun and at first is reported missing. Finally, however, he is identified in a New York hospital and his father and father see him and realize he has completely lost his memory and speech. He is like a living dead man.

At the hospital a celebrated brain specialist returns from Europe and examines Jim. He says an operation might prove fatal. NURSE NELLIE DOWNING asks him whether it is that music often stirs him to tears.

Now Begin the Story

CHAPTER XXIX

The doctor, after a minute, turned back to Nellie Downing. He was

"If I could answer those questions, Miss Downing," he replied, "with any degree of certainty, I might be able to tell you correctly what constitutes all the secret forces controlling the human brain. But that is something that no man knows and never will know. The omnipotent power that controls the vast workings of the universe guards his secrets too closely for the puny mind of man ever to find their roots."

He laid his hand on Jim Elwell's shoulder and looked long and deeply into his vacant eyes. When he turned away again it was with a sigh. "We are so helpless," he said, "in the face of a puzzle like this."

Mollie ventured timidly to ask, "And is no operation possible at all without the danger of its being fatal? Not even to try to find out exactly what is the matter?"

"I'm afraid not," said Dr. Lawson. "I'm sorry. As I said before, with your consent and advice I'd be willing to operate, but I wouldn't answer for your boy's life. I'm sorry," he said again.

"There has been improvement in his condition," Prof Elwell told the surgeon, "since he came here. Remarkable improvement, I think. When he first got here, I am told, he was barely able to more around. Now he is able to feed himself and do all those things we've told you about. Music moves him to some kind of emotions, apparently, for it produces tears, as Miss Downing told you.

"Another thing—he kisses his mother of his own volition now"—here Nellie Downing blushed faintly and averted her head—"and he can do things—lots of things—after he sees us do them.

"What I'm trying to get at is this: Might not something have happened to his brain, that made it just like the brain of a child? Just as a child learns to walk and talk and think, might he not be able to regain his lost faculties by degrees? Do you suppose that is possible—that it is possible for him to keep on improving like that?"

"Until he is normal again?" asked Dr. Lawson.

"Yes."

The surgeon shook his head. "I'm afraid not. A child's brain is undeveloped but sound. This boy's brain, apparently, is damaged. It is prevented from functioning as it should function. I should say that if your boy gets well it will be through an operation or—"

"Or what?" asked Prof.

"Or the grace of God.

"He said about what I thought he would say," was Nellie Downing's opening remark to Prof and Mollie Elwell when the surgeon had left.

"And you probably noticed," she went on, "that he didn't commit himself any in saying it, either. Really he told us nothing—or very little—that we didn't already know. With all their study and research and practice, in the final summing up of things they don't know very much, after all."

Prof Elwell nodded gravely.

"Well, anyway," said his wife with decision, "an operation is out of the question. While there is life there is hope, and if they operated on Jim and killed him that would be the end. I've known what it is to believe him dead and I know what it is to have him as he is now. I'd rather a million times over have him as he is now than not have him at all."

"You bet!" her husband agreed. "Alive, Jim's always got a fighting chance. But dead, he hasn't a chance in the world. I've never been dead yet but I'm pretty sure about that. And perhaps when we get him back home with the old familiar sights and faces and everything, his memory may come back to him finally. Not right away—not for a long time, maybe—but some day."

"But you won't be taking him—that is, you're not thinking of returning at once, are you?" asked Nellie Downing, and there was something in her tone, it seemed to Mollie Elwell, that was more than just professional interest.

"Well, that, of course, is up to Mollie," he told her. "As far as I'm concerned, I'd just as soon stay here another week. What do you say, my dear"—turning to Mollie—"shall we break up housekeeping now or wait a few days?"

Mollie tapped her lips reflectively. Which was the wiser thing to do? Return with Jim immediately or wait another week?

But then, she asked herself, what particular difference did it make? It was only a matter of a few days either way. Prof had seemed to like the place and, besides, Jim was improving—a little, at least.

"Perhaps we had better stay another week," she said. "We want an opportunity, of course, to say goodby to Mr. Hennegan and to some of the others over on Long Island who have been so kind."

And, she said, they would want to buy some things for Jim. Some clothes and things to make him comfortable around the house. And so that was the way the question was decided. An unimportant decision—seemingly.

Letters that Mollie had been receiving from the girls back in Indianapolis had told of their new activities in the social set in Indiana's capital. They also had described with enthusiasm the progress they were making in their artistic education.

Rusty—or Margaret, as she now signed her name—had entered a school of classical dancing and already saw herself as the successor to Pavlowa or something like that. And Elizabeth was taking vocal lessons and confided that she dared at times to dream of opera.

As an added attraction and as a reward or good work, their uncle had promised them a trip to Europe in October, when they would visit France, Italy and all the wonder places of the old world. The twins were quite enthusiastic.

Mollie read all these letters to Prof and Nellie Downing just as they were written. When she read them to herself she read between the lines and knew of the grief the girls were feeling, a grief that promises of careers and European jaunts could not eradicate. Mollie sighed.

"They are whistling to keep their courage up," she told Prof.

"Young hearts like theirs quickly forget. You and I are getting old and it is a little hard for us to look forward."

It might be a good thing, Prof added, to write to the girls and tell them about their plans.

On the day following Dr. Lawson's visit to the hospital she wrote to Margaret and Betty, telling them the result of the specialist's diagnosis of Jim's case, their decision to return with him the next week and the date on which they expected to arrive.

She had told them in previous letters as much as she considered advisable about his condition, so there was little to add on that subject. Nor did she offer any suggestions relative to the twins' coming to Camdenville to meet Jim on his return home.

That, Mollie Elwell felt, was something that must be left entirely to them to arrange to suit themselves.

Jim Elwell sat beside her on the grassy wind-swept slope as she wrote. He stared out at the water. Occasionally he picked up a pebble and flung it, as he had seen others do before. . .

A pretty nurse, slender and cool in her white cap and uniform, with a red embroidered cross showing in vivid contrast against a spotless sleeve, stood looking at a man beside a rustic chair under a shady tree one summer afternoon in Ocean View Park.

"You are going home tomorrow, Jim," she was saying, "and I'll never see you again."

There was a little catch in the nurse's voice. More, there was trouble in her heart.

"And probably," she went on slowly, still looking fixedly at the young man, who now sat down and closed his eyes, "you never will know, my soldier man of the girl who nursed you in France and kissed you when they took you away; who nursed you here and watched over you and cried over you."

Her voice broke. The Red Cross nurse stopped talking and made little dabs at her eyes with a handkerchief.

The man on the rustic chair opened his eyes. They regarded her with a listless stare. A meaningless smile played about his mouth, but it vanished when he saw her tears.

Presently his own eyes were wet. He reached forth a hand, a strong broad hand, paled a little by inactivity and confinement, and touched her dress.

The nurse turned away suddenly toward the sea and a cool breeze fanned the loose ends of hair about her face. Her strong white teeth bit down cruelly on her lower lip, and her hands doubled up into fists.

"What am I going to do?" she cried softly. "What am I going to do? Going away—and he'll never know who I was—never know that I existed."

It was cruel, she was thinking, to take him away from her like this. Cruel—

A sound escaped the young man behind her and she turned quickly. She saw the wetness in his eyes—pitiful, unrecognizing eyes.

"Oh, Jim," she cried, her voice half strangled with emotion, "will you ever—"

"Nellie!"

The nurse started a little gasp escaping her. Slowly she turned around. Mollie Elwell stood within an arm's length of her.

Love's Embers

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Veritzen's Plans

CLOSING Mary's door softly, I hurried back to my own room with the sensation of one fleeing to sanctuary. I dreaded infinitely seeing Dicky, or, indeed, anyone else until I had had a chance to read over the wireless message from Philip Veritzen, which Dicky had jotted down for me.

Luck was with me. No one was in the hall, and I surmised that Mother Graham, with an idea that the domestic peace might best be preserved by keeping Dicky and me apart for awhile, was insistently engaging his attention and Junior's in her own room. Sending a grateful thought-wave in her direction, I closed and locked my door and sank down in my favorite chair. Then I drew the crumpled paper from the pocket of my sport frock where I had thrust it when Dicky handed it to me. With fingers that were curiously unsteady, I opened it and read it over again.

"Wonderful finds. Will interest you greatly.—Must see you. Go over plans for rehearsals in view of new developments."

I let the paper fall to the floor, and then tense, feeling as if my heart and brain were battlegrounds for curiously opposing emotions, I sprang up and walked swiftly up and down my room my invariable habit when facing a stressful mental problem.

It was as if I were listening to two voices, one chanting an anthem of joyful triumph, the other a discordant dirge. Yet common sense told me that I should be feeling nothing but elation over the message which had come to me. To be privileged to discuss with Philip Veritzen, his plans for the forthcoming production, with the assurance that my opinions upon his "finds" would be listened to with respect—that was indeed a heady draught for me when I remembered my years of repressed longings for even a tiny corner in some theatrical organization, that I might share that fascinating, mysterious process—the evolution of a dramatic production.

I was jubilant, eager, anticipative, but—at the same time I was conscious of an odd feeling of depression, of positive reluctance to answer my employer's summons. And though I hated to acknowledge it even to myself, I knew that with true feminine perversity, the root of this reluctance lay in Dicky's apparent approval of my going. If he had opposed it, no matter how angrily, there would have been a fillip to my journey which was now sadly lacking.

A practical little reminder that it was too late for speculation over my going, that I already had committed myself to the trip, put an end to my own orgy of sentiment, and I spent the few remaining minutes before luncheon in plans for the journey, which I knew in all probability would entail my staying overnight in the city because of the limited Sunday train service back to the east end of the Island. I took my purse from my desk and satisfied myself that the key to Lillian's hotel suite was in it. She had given me one when I moved to the farm, and told the deskman of the old-fashioned hotel that I was likely to use it at any time. I knew that as soon as Marion's school closed, she meant to give up the hotel apartment and come to the country, but there were a few more days left before that time and I was assured not only of a definite home place for my sojourn in the city—I hate going to strange hotels—but also of a chance for a little visit with Lillian, something always most welcome to me.

Fortunately for my own comfort I am of so methodical a nature that my dressing is always kept up to date, and my belongings are where I can lay my hands on them for packing at an instant's notice. Therefore there was but one problem before me and that was the outfit which I should wear upon Sunday when I met Philip Veritzen.

Recipes for New and Novel Dishes; Household Ideas and Suggestions

IN preparing chicken fricassee if baking powder biscuits are used, as in this case, bake the biscuits crisp and brown, split them and arrange in a serving dish just before the fricasse goes to the table. If steamed dumplings are preferred, use a rich baking powder biscuit dough made more than usually soft by the addition of more milk. Drop by spoonfuls on the solid portions of the stew so that each dumpling will rest on the meat and vegetables and not settle into the liquid.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative mixed with olive oil.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c. —Adv.

It deodorizes, too. And thus stops all danger of offending.

✓ Discards as easily as tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You ask for it at any drug or department store, without hesitancy, simply by saying "KOTEX."

Do as millions are doing. End old, insecure ways. Enjoy life every day. Be sure you get the genuine, for only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex.

Pains That Never Came

Here's glorious news for long-suffering womankind! To every woman who periodically has suffered pain, Menstruation need no longer be painful. And it is Science that is speaking!

Specialists have developed a tiny tablet called Midol. It's a simple thing, utterly harmless to a girl of fourteen, but it brings relief in five to seven minutes. And is effective twelve hours or longer!

Midol is NOT a narcotic. It has no effect whatever on heart or nervous system. It acts directly on those organs affected by menstruation. They function normally, as they should, but the pain is banished. Complete relief—yes, perfect comfort—follows Midol.

Your druggist has Midol for 50 cents in a slim aluminum box to tuck in your purse.

"KONJOLA ENDED MY RHEUMATISM; ALL PAINS GONE"

Indiana Man Rejoices Over His New Health; Got Lasting Relief, He Says

"I haven't had a single ache or pain anywhere in my body for a month, so I think at last I have permanent relief, and I have made up my mind to indorse Konjola to everyone who suffers, for this medicine certainly ended my rheumatism," said Mr. John C. Realey, well known Indianapolis, Ind., citizen, living at 3010 W. Michigan Ave., that city, while talking recently with the Konjola Man who is now explaining this surprising new compound at Stump and Sams, (formerly Stump Pharmacy), 121 South Main St., Marion.

MR. JOHN C. REALEY

"Yes, all pains are gone for the first time in nearly 3 years," continued Mr. Realey, "and before I got Konjola I was no more than a cripple.

"I am an auto painter by trade, but since 1920 I haven't worked a day. My trouble started with weak kidneys and became worse. For six years I have been practically an invalid, down in bed most of the time, and very seldom away from the house, unless someone was along, for I never could trust my strength to hold me up. I used crutches constantly for over 3 years, and the many forms of misery I endured are hard to tell in words. But I will say that night after night I hobbled across the floor, suffering agonies any human could. Most nights I never closed an eye. My limbs were so painful they felt like a sharp knife was being gouged into the muscles. Hard lumps the size of hen's egg would raise on the calf of my legs. My family will tell you that I cried out in pain and many times I had to be rubbed and massaged for hours. I would rather have been paralyzed than keep on suffering the way I did. It seemed like relief was impossible. Liniments, electric treatments, and everything recommended was given a trial. Most times I couldn't even get temporary relief. I am 52 years old and I thought I was doomed to agony the rest of my life.

"I had been down in bed 3 weeks, perfectly helpless, at the time my wife sent for your Konjola. When I had taken about half of the first bottle, I felt a change, and a few nights later I slept peacefully for over 7 hours. The pains were easing up, and so I kept right on taking Konjola. My limbs were getting stronger all the time and each night I was resting better. It seemed like a great blessing just to sleep. I was able to get out of bed in two weeks, and just a few days later my pains were entirely gone. Now I am able to walk five blocks to my married daughter's home, go to the grocery and do errands around the house. Any of the home folks will verify my statement as to the benefits I got from your Konjola. I am not quite strong enough to return to work, but gaining strength every day. The lumps do not form on my legs, and the muscles are not swollen, or cramped like they were before, and I am entirely free of all the miseries I had.

"Konjola has been worth its weight in gold to me, and as I said, I have made up my mind to indorse it to others who suffer."

The Konjola Man is at Stump & Sams, (formerly Stump Pharmacy), 121 South Main St., (Marion's busiest downtown section and the easiest to get to) where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.—Adv.

Cleveland Legislator Launches Filibuster In Ohio Senat

BENDER MAKES VERBAL ATTACK AGAINST BILL

Holds Up Vote on Motion To Bring Up Marshall Measure

Columbus, April 20—A filibuster launched by Sen. George H. Bender, Cleveland, in an effort to prevent passage of the Marshall and Etling bills, relating to compensation of justices of the peace and to disposition of fines collected from liquor law violators, featured the opening session of the Ohio senate here today.

The senate and house reconvened at 10:45 a. m.

Immediately after the senate journal of the last session had been read, Sen. L. T. Marshall, Xenia, Republican, presented a motion that the Marshall Bill, of which he is the author, and the Etling Bill, offered by Sen. A. H. Etling, Wayne County, be ordered placed upon today's senate calendar and be called up on the question of passage, and that participants in debate be limited to 15 minutes each.

At this point, Senator Bender launched his filibuster which involved a vigorous attack upon the Marshall and Etling Bills.

Ruled "In Order"

A number of times, Senator Marshall, of Xenia, raised a point of order, claiming Bender was out of order, but Lieut. Gov. Earl D. Bloom, Bowling Green, presiding over the senate, ruled that Bender was "in order."

Most of the senators left their chairs and repaired to the lobby where they discussed the situation, many of them expressing impatience at the delay in acting upon pending legislation.

When Senator Marshall moved up to a seat near Bender and began heckling him, Bender invited other senators to "come up" and do likewise.

The Marshall Bill, to which Bender objected, provides for a schedule of fees to be charged by justices of the peace, that the fees shall be turned over to the county treasurer monthly and that the justice may receive fees up to $300 each month as compensation.

Distribution of Fines

The Etling Bill would authorize the following distribution of fines collected from liquor law violators: one half to the county, if the case is heard by a county officer, or one-half to the municipality, if the case is heard by a municipal officer, and the other half to the township, or municipality in which the offense is committed.

Legislators recalled that the last filibuster in the senate was during the session four years ago when Sen. L. G. Collister, Cleveland, Republican, held the floor more than four hours in a futile effort to force the senate to call up for passage a bill, introduced by Collister, prohibiting the use of gas stoves not properly ventilated.

The last filibuster in the house, it was stated, occurred about 20 years ago when Rep. George Bassett, Toledo, held the floor about two hours.

As We Grow Older

Proper Kidney Function is More Than Ever Important

AS we grow older, there is apt to be a gradual slowing up of bodily functions.

The kidneys are the blood filters. If their action becomes sluggish they do not thoroughly cleanse the blood of poisonous wastes. This tends to make one tired and achy, with often a toxic backache, drowsy headaches and dizziness. A common sympton of imperfect kidney function is scanty or burning excretions.

Elderly people recommend Doan's Pills. This tested diuretic is endorsed the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Guy R. Sloan, 172 Maple St., Naugatuck, Conn., says: "My back ached and was lame and sore. My kidneys showed signs of disorder, as the excretions were thick and burned in passing. I was so miserable, I had to stop work. I improved soon after beginning to use Doan's Pills and soon I was again in good health."

County Weekly Publication and City Industrial Paper Are Being Sponsored Here

W. H. Pletcher, Ashley Publisher, Promoting Newspaper, Expects To Establish Modern Plant in City and Start Publishing June 1; R. S. Cram Plans Organ

Plans are under way for starting two news publications in Marion, one to be a weekly containing reports of happenings not only in the city but throughout the county, and the other either a weekly or monthly devoted to local industrial activities.

W. H. Pletcher, head of the Star-Herald Publishing Co. of Ashley, is back of the weekly newspaper enterprise and Raymond S. Cram, who resides on the Delaware-rd, south of the city, is sponsor for the proposed industrial publication.

Pletcher Optimistic

Mr. Pletcher, who has been making a survey of the local newspaper field for several weeks, stated today that his plans for starting a weekly are progressing in an encouraging fashion and that he expects to launch the enterprise about June 1.

"I am convinced that there is an opening for a county weekly newspaper here and have found many citizens who are of the same opinion," the Ashley publisher said when questioned today regarding his plans. He states that he has closed contracts with a number of merchants for advertising space and has excellent prospects of a large subscription list.

Mr. Pletcher says that his preliminary organization work has been completed and that he is now ready to work out the final details.

To Establish Plant

He plans to establish a publishing plant here with practically all new equipment, the location for which will be selected soon, Mr. Pletcher states. He also will continue operation of the Star-Herald plant at Ashley, from where the Tri-County Star and the Waldo Herald are issued. He will make his home in Marion, however, planning to move here when the new Marion county weekly is started.

Mr. Pletcher located in Ashley about a year ago when he purchased the Star-Herald plant from L. E. Benedict. He lived in Columbus prior to that time.

The Tri-County Star, which circulates in Marion, Delaware and Morrow counties is an old publication, having celebrated its sixtieth anniversary recently. The Waldo Herald is a new venture started about a year ago.

Plans Industrial Paper

Raymond S. Cram, employe of the Marion Steam Shovel Co., and editor of the shovel organ for workmen, "The Marion Excavator," proposes to start a city-wide industrial paper.

His plan is to publish a small tabloid, similar to the Marion Excavator, with the paper covering the entire industrial field of the city. Its reading matter would be made up largely of current factory news. It also will carry a small amount of advertising.

It is his plan to have each factory contribute a small amount of money toward the enterprise. Under this arrangement the paper will be handed to employes of the various plans on pay day, without cost to the workmen.

Under this plan of distribution Mr. Cram claims he will be able to start publication with a guaranteed circulation of at least 3,000.

His plan is to have the paper printed by the Marion Printing Co., N. Prospect-st. It would either be a weekly or monthly, according to the tastes of the various industries which are expected to supply the money to operate.

prominence throughout the country in women's fraternal circles.

Children Decide

The daughter and two sons of Mr. and Mrs. Franz decided to remove their parents' bodies to Marion Cemetery due to this city having been their early place of residence and to the fact that other relatives are buried here.

Mrs. Franz was a granddaughter of Eber Baker, founder of the city of Marion. She was born in Bucyrus, March 5, 1853, the daughter of Capt. Gerard Reynolds, who was prominent in military circles in this part of Ohio during the Civil War, having been head of a company in which a large number of Marion men enlisted.

She was married to John S. Franz in 1871 and in 1883 they moved to Tampa, Fla., after residing a number of years in Marion. They resided in Florida continuously after the date, moving in 1900 to Jacksonville, where Mr. Franz organized the Franz Safe & Lock Co., an industrial concern which he managed until his death on May 18, 1911.

Following his death, Mrs. Franz took active charge of the business and conducted it until her duties as an official of the Eastern Star Order called her away from Jacksonville frequently.

Named Worthy Matron

Always taking a keen interest in club and social work, Mrs. Franz helped organize the Jacksonville Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, in 1905 and in 1907 was elected its worthy matron.

In 1910 she was advanced to the station of grand worthy matron of the organization in Florida and the unusual qualities of leadership displayed by her in that capacity resulted in her election as head of the national organization in 1922.

During her term as national executive she visited the grand chapters in all states of the union, Canada and also made official visits to chapters in Cuba, San Juan, Prince Edward Island, Mexico and Alaska.

Mrs. Franz died in January, 1926, of pneumonia, death coming after a brief illness. She was active in fraternal and community affairs up until the time of her last illness.

Details Received Here

Details regarding arrangements for removal of the bodies to Marion and giving May 4 as the date for arrival here were contained in a letter received here yesterday by Col. and Mrs. George B. Christian of E. Church-st, old friends of the Franz and Reynolds families from Mrs. Katherine Franz Owen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franz of Jacksonville. Mrs. Owen and her brothers, Gerard and Fritz Franz, Jacksonville business men, will accompany the bodies to this city.

Many other older residents of Marion and vicinity, in addition to Col. and Mrs. Christian, were friends of Mr. and Mrs. Franz. A number of relatives also reside here.

GIVES VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT IN AUTO SUIT

Case Outgrowth of Accident in 1926; Up from Former Justice's Court

Verdict in favor of the defendant was handed down today by Judge George B. Scofield in the case of Clarcld W. Parratt against Belden Corbin, an action appealed from the court of former Justice M. O. Stoll.

The suit is an outgrowth of an auto accident which occurred Sept. 13, 1926, at midnight at the intersection of Prospect and Center-sts. According to evidence in the case Corbin drove his machine into the Parratt car which was being towed without lights back of a machine driven by W. E. Thomas. Corbin claims he was unable to see the second car.

Parratt brought the action in Justice Stoll's court, seeking $175 damages. Magistrate Stoll awarded him damages of $75. The case was then carried into common pleas court on appeal.

Following the trial today Judge Scofield overruled a motion for a new trial. L. E. Myers, attorney for Parratt, announced he would file a petition in error with the court of appeals within the next few days.

supreme court who is fighting hard to keep the case within the bounds of legal propriety. . . . He has barred photographers from the courtroom. . . . But he has his doubts about the success of his ban.

But the other group makes up for the shortcoming. . . . For Dana Wallace, big gun of Mrs. Snyder's defense, once trained to be an actor.

He has acted in more than 35 murder cases. . . . Both as prosecutor and defender. . . . This case is one of the biggest. . . . For an acquittal will mean the release of more than $100,000 insurance, a house, and a joint bank account, held by the deceased and his wife . . . which means a healthy fee. All these overtones shadow the main issue: Are Henry Judd Gray, married and erstwhile salesman, and Mrs. Ruth Snyder guilty of the brutal murder of the woman's husband, Albert Snyder, art editor of a motor boating magazine?

The male defendant cringes before the ordeal. The woman sits with head high, mouth pursed and chin determined. Neither looks at the other. The fire of their passion, so heated once, has chilled to hate.

Each tries to pin the murder on the other. The outlook is dark for both.

Yet the man has it in his power to make the beau geste—that could clear the woman and save her life.

He could take the stand and shoulder the whole blame. And he probably would—if he loved the woman as once he did.

But chivalry and sacrifice fade out in the shadow of the death chair. Each for himself.

So the "trained seals" crane their necks and watch. It is a good show.

HERE'S MORE ABOUT STEVENS ARREST

Morral and the balance to the next of kin, Clark's clients.

Clark states that Stevens filed this account in probate court in the spring of 1926 after proceedings demanding a report from the executor had been started.

Hearing Held

After this account was submitted, Clark filed exceptions on the grounds that it failed to comply fully with the law, having omitted information to show where the funds were deposited.

A hearing was held on these exceptions a few weeks ago and the probate court ordered Stevens to provide the missing information, Clark states. Stevens failed to comply with the court's order, it is alleged, and the demand for his removal as executor followed.

The affidavit which brought about Stevens' arrest was filed Monday by G. Farr Larie after he took charge of the Ritter estate as administrator.

Filing of the charge at this time was unjust and unfair to Stevens, he and his attorneys assert, since he had been given until April 25 to file his executor's account and produce the money belonging to the estate.

The Ritter estate consisted of personal property and real estate valued at more than $20,000, but only about $10,000 was left after all debts were paid, it is reported.

The statement made in Stevens' behalf this morning by his attorneys, Mouser, Young & Mouser, reads as follows:

"After careful investigation of facts surrounding the charge of embezzlement placed against our client we are of the opinion that he is innocent.

"Rejects Provisions"

"Howard A. Stevens was executor of the last will and testament of Charles Ritter," the statement continues. "By the terms of this will Mrs. Ritter, the widow, was to receive during her life the income from the estate to be invested by the executor and trustee.

"The will by its provisions gave to Howard A. Stevens, its executor, $1,000, his two minor children $1,000 and John Buck, a farmer living near Morral, $1,500.

"Mrs. Ritter, the widow, finally decided to reject the provisions of the will and to take, instead of the life income from the estate invested, her share from a division of the property. This gave to her one-half of the first $400, one-third of the balance of the personal property and dower interest in the real estate, which consisted of 264 acres of land near Morral.

"After Mrs. Ritter came to this decision, Mr. Stevens as executor of the will and under order from probate court sold the real estate to pay debts, realizing about $21,000. He then paid to Mrs. Ritter as her dower interest about $7,000 in cash. In addition to this sum there was paid from funds of the estate about $13,000 to liquidate debts.

Suit Pending

"The executor has paid all debts excepting costs in probate court, and his fees as trustee and executor.

"Question arose, after the widow decided upon a division of the property, as to whether or not Mr. Stevens as executor had a right by terms of the will to pay the legacies to himself, his children and John Buck.

"John Clark, attorney for the Ritter heirs claimed that the widow having elected to take under the will the amount remaining in the hands of the executor should be invested by him and at the death of the widow paid to Charles Ritter's next of kin.

"This dispute between the executor and Mr. Clark, representative of the Ritter heirs, resulted in the law firm of Guthery, Strelitz & Guthery bringing suit for Mr. Stevens for the purpose of having provisions of the will construed. This suit has never been heard and is awaiting action of the court.

"The difference of opinion as to the meaning of the will rendered the conduct of the estate by Stevens as executor unpleasant and he informed L. B. McNeal, probate judge, that he probably would resign. This resulted in appointment of G. Farr Larie as administrator to succeed Stevens and the probate court gave Stevens until April 25 to file his final account. Mr. Stevens was preparing to do this when he was called out of his bed and arrested on the charge of embezzlement.

Bond Is $1,000

"Mr. Clark had gotten the impression that Stevens was to make his report on April 18 and when shown written notice from probate court admitted there had been a mistake made and asked Judge Martin to continue the case until April 20.

"The court fixed the bond at $1,000 which was immediately given and Mr. Stevens expects to file his account before April 26 and show conclusively there has been no embezzlement nor wrongdoing by him in settlement of this estate."

This is the second arrest of Stevens this month on an embezzlement charge. He was taken into custody on April 4 on an affidavit filed by the Weidemann Co. of Cleveland, a wholesale grocery firm, which charged him with taking $82.80 belonging to the company while acting as its attorney in making collections. This case was settled and dismissed.

Stevens has practiced law in Marion about 15 years. He served as city clerk during the administration of former Mayor Sautter.

$300,000 FIRE LOSS

Flames Destroy Large Wall Paper Concern Building at Joliet, Ill.

The flames spread so rapidly that firemen were compelled to devote their energies to save the other factory building which was less than 50 feet away.

Fire Chief Calvin Royce and Assistant Chief Thomas Ruddy narrowly escaped death when they were showered by bricks when one of the walls fell in.

LEVEE BREAKS, DRIVES 5,000 TO HIGH GROUND

New Madrid, Mo., Practically Deserted as Town Becomes Flooded

St. Louis, April 20—Crumbling under the terrific pounding of flood waters in the mighty Mississippi which beat against its walls for several days, the St. John's Bayou levee gave way today and drove 5,000 persons in the vicinity of New Madrid, Mo., to the hills, according to telegraphic advices received from Red Cross field representatives here.

New Madrid was practically deserted as the town became flooded and the situation was made somewhat critical when there were no concentration point available for the homeless. The refugees fled in all directions seeking high points out of the waters' reach.

The break caused a territory 60 miles back of the Mississippi to be visited by the floods, the advices stated.

TOWN COVERED WITH EIGHT FEET OF WATER

Memphis, Tenn., April 20—Clarendon, Ark., today was covered with eight feet of water following a break in White River levee early this morning.

The town of 3,000 population fled their homes and took refuge on the courthouse hill, which is considerably higher than the rest of the city.

For more than two hours after the break, the water rushed through the crevasse at about 40 miles an hour, washing away buildings and barns and tossing pieces of furniture about like corks.

Telephone operators during the night warned all they could in the vicinity that a break in the levee was imminent.

Due to precautions taken in sounding the proper warning, there has been no loss of life it was believed.

APPEALS FOR AID SHOW SERIOUSNESS

Memphis, Tenn., April 20—Appeals for aid today emphasized the seriousness of the Mississippi River flood—the greatest in its history—which has engulfed nearly 3,000,000 acres of farmlands and made 25,000 homeless.

The Red Cross and other relief organizations declared that the homeless flood sufferers, crowded in refugee camps in a dozen towns and cities in Arkansas, Kentucky and Tennessee, are badly in need of food and clothing.

Meanwhile the raging Mississippi continues on its path of destruction, aided by its tributaries.

SMITH BESIEGED FOR PROHIBITION STATEMENT

Friends and Critics of New York Governor Anxious for Declaration

Washington, April 20—Elated over the country-wide reaction to his reply to the Marshall letter, friends of Gov. Al Smith here and elsewhere are advising him to declare himself with equal clarity on the controversial subject of prohibition.

Gov. Smith, his friends feel, has successfully hurdled one of the greatest obstacles in his road toward the Democratic presidential nomination by his epochal letter declaring for the absolute separation of church and state. The governor's attitude toward prohibition constitutes the other main obstacle, and many of his friends feel he should dispose of it in the same ringing manner.

The suggestion comes not alone from the governor's friends, but from some of his critics as well. It is recognized that the chief opposition to Smith centers in the solid south, which is Protestant and dry. An analysis of editorial comment from southern newspapers, and statements from Democratic leaders in the south, has shown that the governor's reply to the Marshall letter was approved in the south almost as much as in the north. It was striking, however, how many of the southern commentators mingled criticism of the governor's views on prohibition with their praise of his disposal of the religious issue.

SCHOOL FIGHT

Legion Posts Taking Active Part in West Chester Issue

Philadelphia, April 20—The Henry H. Houston American Legion post of this city today entered into the West Chester normal school controversy. The local legionnaires passed a resolution supporting the Bernard Schlegel post of West Chester in its allegations that seditious propaganda was circulated in the normal school.

Local legionnaires also passed a resolution demanding an investigation by the national commander of the Willard Straight post of New York.

The New York legionnaires endorsed the Liberal Club, a student organization of the West Chester school. The club has been the storm center of the controversy growing out of the dismissal of two professors. The club is classified as "radical" by the West Chester post.

Chauncy Depew, Near 9. Selects Coolidge, Smit

NEW YORK, April 20—Chauncey M. Depew, who celebrates his ninety-third year of youthful thoughts next Saturday, today predicted that Calvin Coolidge would be unanimously renominated by the Republican party for president in 1928.

"And if Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, opposes Coolidge, the latter will be re-elected," America's grand old man and former Republican senator asserted in his annual birthday interview with the press.

Depew said that Governor Smith's reply to Charles C. M shall on his attitude towa Roman Catholic Church and U. S. Constitution had stre ened Smith's prestige enorm and had put him in a far favorable position for the D cratic presidential nominati he was in 1924.

Kenton, April 20—The corn borer quarantine border patrol to prevent the movement of fodder or corn on the cob from the restricted to the free areas of Hardin County, has been set up here, E. A. Chenault, federal agent in charge, announced today.

Personnel of the patrol was not announced, however members are now entirely at work checking and reporting the movement of fodder southward across the danger line.

Alleged violations of the federal regulations prohibiting the movement of fodder from the quarantine areas, were reported yesterday by G. P. Babson, Bucyrus, representative of the federal department of agriculture, who completed a special survey of the local situation. There is a possibility that prosecution will result in these cases.

LEXINGTON TROUNCES MT. GILEAD HIGH OUTFIT

Three Hurlers Fail To Stop Slugging; Final Score 18-5

Mt. Gilead, April 20—On a certain 19th of April some years ago, it is said, a rousing reception was given certain British soldiers by the brave New England yoemanry, thus perpetuating the name and fame of Lexington. But all this is nothing compared with what happened to Coach Matheny's baseball team at Lexington, yesterday, April 19.

The team left at 2:30, received a fine lacing and returned. They got only three hits and five runs, while Lexington accumulated 18. It might be said in this connection that the score, 18 to 5, was a baseball and not a football score.

Rhodebeck started to pitch for the Purple and Lexington got six runs before the side was retired. He was replaced by Logan, who fared better. Rule replaced Logan and allowed seven runs in the final stanza. Lexington clubbed out 18 hits from the joint offerings of the trio. Bennett, Rule and Logan were the only local players to hit safely.

Fourteen of the Purple batters fanned during the seven inning game.

Mt. Gilead, April 20—The concert by the Canto Club of Marion, which was to have been given tonight at Levering Hall under the auspices of the Mt. Robinson, who was directly interested, as a representative of Kiwanis, in bringing the Marion attraction to Mt. Gilead.

The dedication of the American Legion club rooms, which was to have been held Friday, April 29, has been indefinitely postponed on account of Byrd's death. This action was taken in respect to the memory of the deceased member of the post.

Galion Students Very Busy With Closing School Work

GALION, April 20—With the closing of school in eight high school students are working toward a grand and glorious finish. The remaining weeks are filled with interesting activities, including entertainments, banquets and class parties.

The seniors have started rehearsals for the class play, "The Show Off" and are promising a splendid presentation. The play will be given on the nights of May 19 and 20 and will be the high light of the closing week. Characters were chosen by the try-out method which has been used in Galion for a number of years. A committee of faculty members assisted by Mrs. Loren Beck, dramatic instructor, chose the cast, naming Franklin Craun, Geraldine Heiby, Ruth McMahon, Esther Amann, James Boyer, Gerald Everly, Kenneth Reusch and Merritt McElroy to take part.

Prepare for Banquet

The juniors are hard at work preparing for the annual junior-senior reception, when they will act as hosts to members of the graduating class and faculty. Each year the receptions have become more elaborate so that months of work are required. As usual the decorating committee is attempting to keep the plan of decoration a secret although tradition demands that the senior colors, rose and gray, be used. Theodore Schaefer is the chairman of the group planning the transformation of the gymnasium for the night of the year's greatest social event.

For entertainment that night the juniors will present a program of merit, the feature of which will be a one act play, "Station YYYY," by Booth Tarkington, has been selected and the cast includes Dixie Belle Snyder, Theodore Schaefer, Martha Carol Schaffner, Juanita Curren, Billy McFarquhar, Robert Findley, Billy Wagner and Hazel Haynes.

TURNER ANNOUUNCES RULING ON "L" CLEATS

Operation of Machines with Non-Slipping Equipment on Highways Illegal

Columbus, April 20—Attorney General E. C. Turner has ruled that it is illegal to operate over the public highways a traction engine, or a tractor, which has an angle iron or non-movable "L cleats" on the wheles or tires.

The opinion went to Prosecuting Attorney C. H. Conaway, Mt. Gilead, who told the attorney general that highways in Morrow County were being damaged considerably because of the operation of tractors and traction engines to the wheels, or tires, of which were attached non-movable "L cleats" about two inches in length, the surface of which, touching the road, measured only ¾ inch, "having the same effect as an ice pick, or lug."

Turner ruled that, in such cases, where roads are damaged, civil action for damages may be instituted. The legal definition of a "cleat", according to Turner, is "a strip of wood, or iron, fastened to the tires or wheels to prevent slipping."

MORRAL STUDENTS TO PRESENT OPERETTA

"In a Flower Garden" Title of Juvenile Musical Production

Morral, April 20—The operetta "In a Flower Garden" will be presented by the first six grades of school in the near future.

The main characters are: "Spiders of the Garden," Paul Cook and Allen Ferguson; "Dawn," Helen Moore; "Noon," Ruby Wright; "Rain," Ardetha Wallace; "Sunset," Rosina Starner; "Dusk," Maxine Cook; and "Fair Weather," Bertha Wallace.

The operetta represents one day in the life of the flowers of the garden. They are awakened by the Bird Voices, given a drink by the Dews; they play with the Sunbeams, and then greet the Dawn. Fair Weather comes and brings with her the little White Clouds. Butterflies visit the flowers and then noon arrives. Winds whisper to Flowers of the approach of the Storm Clouds and rain, the enemies of Fair Weather, and the little White Clouds. The latter are driven away for a while, but soon return with the Rainbow Tints. Then Sunset and Dusk visit the Flowers, who are finally lulled to sleep by the fireflies.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS

Question To Be Decided by Kenton Officials Soon

Kenton, April 20—Whether or not red and green semaphore traffic signal lights, similar to those in use in all the larger cities, are to be installed at the main street intersections in the uptown business district, will in all probability be decided during the coming two weeks, it was announced last night by Byron D. James, city safety director.

The four huge "light houses" that have graced each corner of the public square here for years as silent traffic guides, have been removed making way for the semaphores should they be decided upon. During the past several days the safety director has been in conference with firm representatives handling the traffic lights. However, no purchases have been made.

BLACKSMITH'S BODY RACKED WITH PAINS FOR 11 YEARS

Sleep Disturbed at Night

Dallas, Pa.—The look of wretched pain gone from his face, Mr. Charles Scarfoss, one of the best known blacksmiths in this section of Pennsylvania, residing on Main Street, this city, asked your correspondent to put his remarkable story in the papers.

"I am fifty-four years old. For the past eleven years I have suffered the most horrible rheumatic pains. Only one who has actually been through it can understand. Sitting up or lying down, it was always the same — my legs and whole side of my body just ached. I could get no rest at night; my kidney weakness caused me to be disturbed every night. I was grouchy and irritable—always fighting with someone.

"After taking Matamel I found the aches getting better; I could hardly believe it—it was too good to be true, and I expected it was just temporary. But, no! I am really another man. I sleep all night, feel fine in the morning, and am back on the job again. I'm not so nervous and irritable—and I owe it all to Matamel."

If this story reaches other sufferers from rheumatic pains, or from certain forms of chronic kidney and bladder inflammation — folks who are disturbed at night, have dizzy spells, weakness, swollen feet and legs, no appetite, headaches and ringing sound in the ears, if they will learn that Matamel is that wonderful Natural Jap of the Mexican Maguey Plant that helps so many people, then this story has done its purpose. Matamel can be had here from

Bucyrus Councilmen Plan Passage of Amendment to City Traffic Ordinance

Measure Given Third Reading at Meeting; Boulevard Stop-Lights To Be Placed at Principal Street Intersections

Bucyrus, April 20—Establishment of a boulevard stop light system on local streets was one step nearer today following the third reading of an amendment to the traffic ordinance providing for the new plan at a meeting of city council last night.

Final action on the measure was deferred until next council meeting in order to prepare the measure for a vote. The favorable attitude of all councilmen toward the measure indicated its passage.

The plan for traffic regulations in the city will include the placing of suspended red and green boulevard stop-lights at the most important street intersections in the city and the erection of stop signs at points where side-streets cross anyone of the group of so-called through streets, which are designated in the ordinance.

Another ordinance was given its third reading before council, a resolution was passed under suspension of the rules and proposal from the finance committee discussed by the members.

Table Handbill Proposal

One proposal regarding the regulation of passing handbills on the streets was tabled for further discussion at the next meeting.

Employment of H. R. Allensworthy, Columbus, an appraisal expert and accountant, is authorized in the second measure given its third reading last night. Allensworthy will represent Bucyrus along with other cities in determining the value of Logan Gas Co. properties in the present gas rate contention between the utility and the Ohio cities it serves.

Protection of city owned trucks and automobiles with liability insurance was favorably reported to council by the finances committee and referred to the ordinance committee.

The city service director is authorized to receive bids on a new street roller by a resolution passed by council. The report of the sewer committee was accepted.

COMPLETE FORMATION OF ATHLETIC LEAGUE

London, Urbana, Bellefontaine and Marysville Schools Band Together

Marysville, April 20—A meeting of school officials and athletic coaches of the London, Urbana, Bellefontaine and Marysville schools was held in the Oakland Hotel in this city, Monday night. The purpose of the meeting was to complete the formation of an athletic league, such as drawing up the constitution and selecting a name for the association.

It was decided at the meeting that meetings are to be held twice each year between school officials in the league, one of these meetings to be held in the spring and the other in the fall of the year. These meetings will be held either in Marysville or Urbana, probably alternating between the two towns. Each school will cast one vote in deciding questions that present themselves.

The name of the league is "Tecumseh High School Athletic League" and the above schools are the charter members. It so happens that Marysville is "the baby" in the league, having the smallest number of enrolled students in proportion to the other schools. The league will function in the four sports, football, basketball, baseball and track. It was agreed by the representatives that "scouting" on rival teams who are members in the league will not be permitted.

According to plans, each team in the league will meet with the other teams, once each season in football, twice in basketball and once in track. This will be a great help to the schools in arranging the schedules. All teams in the league must also be members of the Ohio Athletic Association.

Teeth Like Ivory

A breath like Spring

Here is the best way dental science knows to whiten teeth and purify the breath. Here is the quickest way to bring a sweet, fresh feeling in the mouth.

Here is a dentifrice on which some 50 experts collaborated to make it the most perfect, the most efficient tooth paste in existence.

Here is the only tooth paste which contains the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in concentrated form. Dentists have for 50 years advised its daily use.

When cloudy coats discolor teeth, this tooth paste will quickly remove them. It will sweeten the breath, end bad tastes in the mouth. The first time you use it will be a delightful surprise.

Then the magnesia in it kills all acids instantly. It penetrates between the teeth where those acids form. These acids are formed by starch and sugar and are the greatest foes of teeth and gums. There can be no acid where magnesia is present. Go now and try Phillips' Dental Magnesia tooth paste. See how it whitens the teeth, how it purifies the breath. Note the fine after taste that it brings in the mouth. Learn why its effect on acids is so important to you. Do this at once for your own sake. Be sure that you will never again depend on a lesser tooth paste.

Five in One
Its 15 ingredients combine in one tooth paste these five important helps:
Antacids Cleansers
Antiseptics Polishers
Breath Deodorants

Guessing Why Coolidge Called Hughes to Capital

Quest Comes in Midst of All Foreign Entanglements of Administration

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, April 20—It's a privilege to guess for President Coolidge sent Charles Hughes the other

CHARLES E. HUGHES

of state is being urged to portfolio back. He's out for keeps, undoubtedly. Washington would answered is:

If the president's satisfied with the advice he's getting locally on the subject of foreign affairs, why does he have to send up to New York after it?

In case Secretary of State Kellogg resigns, no prediction as to his successor is a safe one which fails to take into account the qualifications:

Precisely it suits Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

It's no secret that not an important appointment is made in Washington against Hoover's opposition. It's equally well accepted that anybody he wants appointed is as good as appointed. No appointee, already in office, cares to have Hoover suggesting his removal.

It's agreed that Hoover could have the state portfolio in a minute if he cared for it.

The only reason he isn't more prominently mentioned for it is that that he's added so many functions to the commerce department and organized it so completely to suit himself that it's doubted if he'd care to leave it.

"ONLY over my dead body," says Sen. Keyes of New Hampshire. And he isn't dead yet. Thus the Sen. Jim Reed slush fund committee is stalled, despite everything.

The committee was named last summer to probe the high cost of certain senatorial campaigns. Chairman Reed was almost the whole thing. The probe was all to Reed's glory, and the Democrats, of whom he's one; to the dreadful discomfiture of every Republican he found a chance to pan.

When congress ended, the bedevilled Republicas said the committee was dead, too. Reed said he'd show 'em it wasn't by probing some more.

But he needed expense money. Keyes, a Republican, who considers the committee dead, has charge of senate expenditures and wouldn't give him a cent.

THE dispute waxed hot. It's for the senate to decide finally, but this was an emergency. Vice President Dawes announced he'd act in it. He decided for Reed.

(A funny decision for a Republican vice president maybe, but they say Dawes has it in for some Republicans.)

Did this squelch Keyes? It did not. He promptly invited Dawes, as well as Reed, to go take a long running jump. What's more, there's no power short of the senate which can make Keyes loosen, and the senate won't meet until December.

That's a long time for Reed and Dawes to chafe and fuss.

IT'S pretty sure to be a swell row when it does come up.

It will be noted that Senator Fess, who was appointed by Dawes to fill a vacancy on the committee, has discreetly declined.

The cautious Ohioan—who's a good Republican anyway, and not in sympathy with probes like Reed's—doesn't care to be caught in any jam between such a trio of Helen Maria, "show me" and Old Granite scrapers as Dawes, Reed and Keyes, respectively.

DR. ECKENER COMING

Will Supervise Construction of Several Dirigibles in United States

New York, April 20—Dr. Hugo Eckener, who commanded the dirigible Los Angeles, when she flew across the Atlantic from Friedrichshafen, Germany to Lakehurst, N. J., will arrive here next week to supervise the construction of several dirigibles in this country, it was learned today.

He will be accompanied by Dr. Karl Schmid, director of the Zeppelin works. They will confer with officials of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation concerning the new dirigibles which will be built at the corporation's plant at Akron, Ohio.

Josette Trichet, a six-year-old musical prodigy of France, has astonished musicians with her wonderful knowledge of classical works. She was recently "guest conductor" at a concert by one of the most celebrated symphony orchestras of Paris.

BEHIND THE SCREEN

Vilma Banky and Ronald Colman

"VILMA BANKY and Ronald Colman have the most perfect camera faces on the screen," says George Barnes, who is now engaged in "shooting these two stars in Goldwyn's latest production, "The Magic Flame." "By that, I mean we can 'shoot' them from nearly any angle or horizontal position and the results will be always pleasing to the eye."

According to Barnes, this is not true of every motion picture artist. A big step toward stardom is to learn by constant practice and careful remembering to present the best angles, sides, points and positions to the camera. This is far more difficult than one can imagine.

There are many famous stars who forget time after time some little detail of presenting their better side, head angle or body position to the camera, thus necessitating a retake. If a star forgets too often or too long—stardom ceases.

And some of the great stars have a great many physical defects to watch and conceal, says Barnes.

Victor McLaglen is tired of playing hard boiled roles. He wants to play the part of a strong man, but one who also has a heart, not a brute. Ever since his work in "What Price Glory," as Captain Flagg, he has been besieged with offers from various companies since his type is rare in the movies.

The perfect ultra modern flapper has at last been found in the person of Alberta Vaughn, according to Harry Cohn, in charge of production for Columbus Picture, who signed her for the feminine lead in the "Romantic Age."

"Fast and Furious," Reginald Denny's automobile story, is being rushed to completion at the Universal City studios now that the star has recovered from an appendicitis operation.

Joseph Schildkraut has been selected to play the leading role in Henrik Ibsen's "Peer Gynt."

Mary Astor was assigned the leading feminine role in "Two Arabian Knights," to be filmed by United Artists.

DOUBT IF MYSTERY OF DEATH WILL BE CLEARED

Body of Wealthy War Veteran Is Taken from Potomac River

Washington, April 20—Doubt was expressed today that the mystery surrounding the death of Capt. Frederick Kepper, Jr., wealthy war veteran and steel man, ever will be cleared up.

Kepper disappeared here on April 5 and his body was taken from the Potomac River near Great Falls late yesterday. An autopsy failed to establish conclusively that he was drowned, yet no evidences of injury could be found on his body. A compromise verdict was finally reached "death by drowning, accidental" with a question mark placed after the last word.

Police and friends have established that Kepper left his place of business here on the night of his disappearance in an intoxicated condition. His car was later found abandoned with a flat tire near Great Falls. The countryside was searched without success, and then a week later his hat and coat were found in a spot near the river bank that had previously been well searched by investigators.

About the time of his disappearance, friends said he was to have gone to New York to consult attorneys concerning an estate being settled, in which he was to have shared nearly a quarter of a million dollars. The law firm of John W. Davis, ex-candidate for president, acted as Kepper's attorneys.

Tex Rickard May Answer Commission's Action With Uzcudum-Dempsey Battle

Jimmy Maloney-Jack Sharkey Elimination Final May Also Be Called Off or Suffer Indefinite Postponement, Says Walsh; Other Important Changes Rumored

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, April 20 — Jack Dempsey against Paulino Uzcudun, proponent of the Anti-Joyce Kilmer movement, on or about July 4 and let the worst man forget the flame, will be Tex Rickard's reply to the New York commission's action in throwing the Paolino-Jack Delaney thing over the transom to die on its own blood. That, anyhow, was the word today from Madison Square Garden, where they are awaiting Rickard's early return to the land of the sky blue cheek bone.

From the same source came the rumor that the great run-around, known as the Jimmy Maloney-Jack Sharkey heavyweight elimination final, may be allowed to go by default, or at least suffer an indefinite postponement, because both boys have proved themselves natural born penmen.

They apparently have signed contracts with great abandon, according to existing advices, Maloney is pledged to fight Johnny Risko in Cleveland and Tom Heeney in Boston before the Sharkey date on May 19 and, while it can be done, the betting is that it won't be. Sharkey also is alleged to be under contract for an early appearance in Boston, the result being that Rickard and his May 19 engagement are being badgered by injunctions, liens, threats and promises.

Hears from Dempsey?

The worst of it is that the match doesn't look the part of a hot shot here, anyhow. So they say Rickard, having heard secretly from Dempsey, is almost ready to forget the incident.

As a matter of fact, the situation is a perfect "out" for the gentleman, if there is anything in these persisting rumors that a return engagement between Dempsey and Tunney is ordained. All he needs for another $1,800,000 harvest is the build up of Dempsey and Tex could travel over land and sea, a thousand miles or more, and he'd never find a corner stone like apolite on the floor.

Dempsey Should Win

Dempsey, paying off only 20 cents on the physical dollar, should pop that bird over in the first few minutes of play and, after that, you couldn't stop the riot at the turnstiles with a machine gune.

But suppose Paolino won? I asked that question around the garden today with the notion of finding out whether some projectile thought the three-ring circus could be tossed in with Tunney.

It turned not, and here is where Messrs. Maloney and Sharkey were to provide their excuse for breathing. This match, they said, would be lifted down from the shelf, carefully dusted off, exposed to public view and the winner matched with Paolino. The ultimate survivor then would get Tunney.

And the more I think of that remark the more I am reminded of the man who got pneumonia.

PAOLINO-DELANEY MATCH IS RUINED

New York, April 20. The Paolino-Jack Delaney proposed heavyweight bout was late yesterday declared "null and void" by the New York State athletic commission on the ground that Delaney, a light-heavyweight, must not box out of his class.

A motion proposed by Commissioner William Muldoon that hereafter Delaney must only fight as a light-heavyweight inasmuch as his showing against Jimmy Maloney, heavyweight, was disappointing and that there were plenty of matches to be obtained by Delaney in his own class, was passed unanimously by the commission.

George W. Gauthier Speaks at Meeting; John H. Clark Again Head of Commission

One Hundred and Fifty Players, Managers and Fans at Banquet

Second Meeting of New Commission Friday Night at Y. M. C. A.

ONE hundred and fifty recreational ball fans, players, managers and captains, last night attended one of the most successful banquets of the recreational ball association ever held in Marion. The banquet was staged in the basement of the First Reformed Church, S. Prospect st.

George W. Gauthier, athletic director of Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, was the speaker, and gave an address that brought long and loud applause from his listeners. He was introduced by Francis W. Bacon, personnel director of the Marion Steam Shovel, who was instrumental in bringing him here for the meeting. John H. Clark served as toastmaster of the banquet and gave a brief address.

Mr. Gauthier discussed and analyzed the question, "Why Do We Like to Play the Game?" Several reasons were given in answer to the problem. First, Mr. Gauthier declared, we like to play the game to win. The man that no longer has the desire to fight and to win has no business on any athletic field in any kind of sport, he stated. The spirit is gone if the fight is gone.

Physical Fitness

The feeling of satisfaction and physical fitness following the tussle is another reason why many love athletics. If a man goes into a game of any kind and can give a great battle against the strongest of opponents, he feels that he is physically fit to accomplish things, Mr. Gauthier asserted.

There is also a great deal in "how" we play the game, continued Mr. Gauthier, both in athletics and in business. If we play it fair and square, we gain the respect of opponents and spectators. If we play it otherwise, the consequences may not be so pleasant.

In closing, the Ohio Wesleyan athletic head compared every angle of athletics with that of business, bringing out the similarity of the two.

Attorney John H. Clark, president of the commission last year and again elected for the coming season, declared that he expected Marion to have the greatest of all recreational ball years. Interest is greater than ever before, he stated.

RISKO AGAIN

Cleveland Heavyweight Gets Decision Over Quentin Romero Rojas, Chilean

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 20—Johnny Risko, Cleveland heavyweight, today moved a step closer to a possible match with Gene Tunney, titleholder, as a result of his 10-round decision over Quentin Romero Rojas, Chilean battler, here last night.

The two heavies stood toe to toe round after round and pumped rights and lefts into each other, the Clevelander gaining the judges' decision by a narrow margin.

Risko sent Rojas to the floor for a count of nine in the first round, but failed to check the Chilean, who went the ten round limit.

DE MAR WINS

Veteran Runner Takes National Marathon Championship for Fourth Time

Boston, April 20—Clarence De Mar, veteran of veteran runners, yesterday afternoon won the national marathon championship over a field of 159 Hill and Dale contestants from various parts of this country and Canada.

De Mar, four times marathon winner, newspaper compositor, Sunday School teacher, physical culture lecturer, World War veteran and 40 years old in June, took the lead near the starting line at Hopkinton and held it to the finish mark at the Boston Athletic Association club house here.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

At Cleveland: Johnny Farr, Cleveland, defeated Johnny Hill, Chicago, 12 rounds.

At Wilkes Barre: Johnny Risko, Cleveland, defeated Romero Rojas, South America, 10 rounds.

At Minneapolis: Otto Von Porat, Norway, knocked out Tiny Herman, Portland, fourth round.

JUNIORS TO MEET MONDAY NIGHT

A meeting of members of Sunday school teams not older than 16 years of age will be held at 7:30, Monday night, in the Y. M. C. A., with Physical Director F. O. Rudolph in charge. The meeting is to be held for the purpose of discussing a Junior League and deciding whether or not the boys should play hard ball instead of recreational ball. Every team is requested to have at least one representative at the meeting and all are invited for the discussion. of the new commission named in the order of the number of votes received, are as follows:

Frank Gibson, John Clark, Leo Keller, Norris Orissanger, Frank Thomas, T. M. Cunningham, Francis W. Bacon, Doug Torrence, Ray Smallwood, Earl Smart, E. G. Siefert, and Charles Isaly. Physical Director F. O. Rudolph of the Y. M. C. A., is a permanent member of the commission.

Only Eight Present

Only eight were present at the organization meeting of the newly-elected commission immediately following the balloting and little business was transacted. It was decided, however, that the commission would meet at 7:30, Friday night, at the Y. M. C. A., to discuss many problems facing the new board of control this season. It is expected that all will be present at this meeting.

It was definitely decided last night than the entrance fee of each team this season will be $15, the amount assessed last year. In addition it was provided that a admission fee of 10 cents should be charged for the "Little World Series" games at the close of the season. Although there may be a few more expenses this season than last, it was pointed out that the association has a small sum of money in the treasury to start on and will be able to come clear by charging the customary admission fee to the World Series games at the end of the year.

Play Starts May 9

It was also definitely decided that play should start on Monday, May 9. Last season, the first games were not scheduled until May 17 and it was found that during the "Little World Series," darkness would descend about 10 minutes too soon to be comfortable for those playing and those watching the games. It is hoped to eliminate any difficulties of that nature this season by starting a week earlier and finishing a week ahead of last year.

Other matters were discussed but no action taken, due to the fact that only a part of the commission members were present.

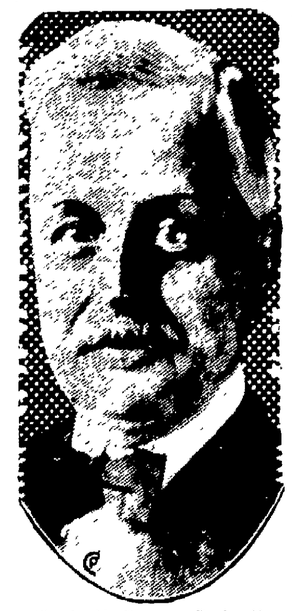
The proposal of a Junior League was met with hearty approval by the commission although there was a slight disagreement on whether the boys below the age of 16 should play hard ball or soft ball. President Clark of the commission first brought up the proposition for boys under 16 years of age to play baseball, rather than recreational ball. No decision of any nature was made in the matter. It will probably be threshed out at the meeting Friday.

Use Gloves

Another proposition was presented by a member of the commission, who asked that all who wished might be authorized to wear a glove in the game. The rules at present, however, specify that only the first baseman and catcher may use a glove, and, since nine are required to amend the constitution, no action was taken last night. This matter will also be presented Friday night.

Entry blanks, distributed to managers of the various teams, must be in the hands of F. O. Rudolph on or before May 2. A meeting will be called May 3 for the purpose of discussing eligibility and drawing up a schedule.

Nine Times Prexy



Claude M. Thomas, Paris, Ky., recently reelected president of the American Saddle Horse Breeders' Association, now is beginning his ninth term in that office. The only other president of the organization was Gen. John B. Castleman of Louisville, who presided over its affairs until his death.

Boston Teams Celebrate Patriots Day and Wallop New York Baseball Clubs

Hal Wiltse Engineers Red Sox Victory Over Yanks, Wins Braves Trim Giants in Double-Header; Cincy Reds and Cleveland Indians Go Down in Defeat

New York, April 20—Boston, city of cod, culture and censorship, today basked in the glare of baseball's spotlight. For the two big league teams representing the staid and effete back bay, where robins chirp with an accent and even the oil is turned west on a devastating rampage yesterday with the New York clubs as the victims. The Red Sox, in winning their best game of the season, snapped the Yankees' streak of six straight victories, while the Braves captured both ends of a twin bill with the Giants.

The Braves were celebrating patriots day and they made a thorough job of it. They sped around the bases like Paul Revere and shelled pitchers Greenfield and Grimes all the way from Bunker Hill to Lexington, scores were 9 to 5 and 5 to 3, Braves advancing to a tie with Phillies for second place, the latter dropping to fourth.

Southpaw Hal Wiltse engineered Red Sox to victory over the Yanks, 6 to 3. The Yanks still lead league by a comfortable margin ever. The Pirates increased in the National League, although game with the Cubs was post-

Haines Wins Another

Jess Haines turned in another performance and the Cards battered the Reds, 9 to 1. He broke into the Cincinnati box ing won his fight for a $12,000 contract.

Jack Scott, of the Phillies had nothing except the grippe and the Brooklyn 4 to 0. It was Scott's seventh straight defeat and Vance was the victim. Wilson got his third homer of the season, leads the circuit clouters in leagues.

Ty Cobb stole home with two full as the Athletics downed the tors 3 to 1. Ehmke was the winning hurler.

Browns in Second Place

The St. Louis Browns captured second place by trouncing the White Sox, 7 to 5. O'Rourke, obtained the Browns from the Tigers, hitters with four safe wallops. Nevers, the ex-football star, blazed the Sox for four innings but weakened thereafter and was retired to the lines.

Detroit took advantage of Cleveland errors and beat the Indians 5 to winning the series. "Lefty" Miller the Indians, tried to do some pitching but was a total bust, while Lil' Stoner managed to stagger through nine innings for the Tigers.

STEINMETZ ROLLS 633 IN BOWLING TOURNEY

"Merry Widow" Scores Already Higher This Year Than at End Last Season

Steinmetz last night rolled 633 in the singles of the "Merry Widow" tournament on the Y. M. C. A. alleys. His respective scores were 216, 191 and 226. No other contestants finished their matches last night.

The tourney will close next week. Scores now are higher than those which won the tournament last year and more records are expected to fall before the final day.

The Business Women's Club will hold its regular bowling match on the Y. M. C. A. alleys tonight but they will be open for "Merry Widow" contestants following the scheduled games.

EXPECT BIG ATTENDANCE AT DETROIT LID LIFTER

Detroit, April 20—All records for baseball attendance in Detroit may be broken today when the Tigers take on the Browns in the season's opener here.

Cloudy and much cooler with probable rains was the prediction of the weather bureau.

Whitehill, who pitched the curtailed game in St. Louis when rain put a stop to the proceedings will start for Detroit. It is probably that Zachary will oppose him.

Tripe walk by her and she had it coming to her, she would say she was sorry, and then she would think a lot more of me, but even if she would think more of me I would not let her think I would lick her. So even when I had got up and let Jubilee down and went to the barn to milk the dummed brutes I had not thought of anything I could do about it. And I was thinking maybe I would tell my mother and have my mother tell her mother I was broken hearted about it, and her mother would tell her, and then she would know I wouldn't kick no lady.

The bunch was there talking about making a kite big enough to lift a fella up off the ground, and didn't notice that I didn't say much, and then the board that covers the hole into the alley slid open and the Lost Bag of Tripe stuck his face through, and I just sat and looked at him. I wasn't where I could do anything else.

He said, "Hello Thomas Aristides," and I said "Hello. Do you know I am going to have your heart's blood before night?" and then all the bunch began to take notice. "But I need my heart's blood," he said. "won't my mother's wash-water do as well?" He was so busy trying to be funny that I let him have a squirt of the cow's milk before he knowed what was happening; and before he could get it out of his eye I had jumped up and pulled him through the hole by the hair. And when I had got him down on the floor he kept hollering "Wait!" and when I did he said he had went past Younisses and told her how it happened. So then I let him up.

When I asted Younisss at school she said he told her I kicked her because I was mad at her, but she smiled at me and said she knew just how it happened. But she said she was mad at first. She said she is black and blue where I kicked her. I hate to think about it.

Me and Jubilee went home with her and stayed till milking time. But Feeble was there.

Peter's Adventures

A Story for Boys and Girls

BY FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

Within the Safety Zone

Peter glanced over his shoulder at Cutie Fox, who was still making the gravel fly and shuddered.

"This is a great time to talk about losing your life! We are safe—you say yourself—Chipmunk, and that is what we ought to be thinking of, not about what would have happened had Fox beaten us to this burrow."

"Righto!" agreed the Red Elf cheerfully. "There is no use in being unhappy over a misfortune that didn't overtake us, is there? Now promise me that you will not worry any longer about old Cutie Fox. He can't touch us as long as we keep under cover. This tunnel is long. One day, a short while ago, I measured it myself."

"How?" asked Peter curiously. "What did you measure it with?"

"With my own body," answered Chipmunk. "I am six inches long, you know—all healthy, full-grown striped Chipmunks are—and this tunnel is just forty times as long as am I. Wife marked each body-length with her claw, so I am sure of what I am saying. Now how long do you think it would take Cutie Fox to dig twenty feet?"

"My gracious, I don't know!" The Boy was surprised to find that this dark passage into which he had come in such a hurry extended so far. He had thought it only a small hole in the ground. He was about to say, when Chipmunk brushed past him. Where was the fellow going? Surely not straight into the jaws of Fox! The daring Red Elf was as wise as he was saucy, though, and he too good care to stop far short of the danger line. Quite out of reach as Fox's paws he began to taunt his enemy.

"Chip, chip, chip!" chattered he. "That's right, Fox, waste all the strength you have digging up the earth and when you are tired go home! You can't catch me and you know it, but you will not own up you are beaten. I have tricked you many a time before this and I will trick you many a time again! Next time you go stalking game don't hunt down wind."

"You horrid little redcoat, you," barked Fox almost beside himself with rage. "You hold your tongue. I wasn't hunting you, if you want to know it. It was far bigger game than you I was after—you just happened across my path."

"Chip, chip! Is that so"? chattered Chipmunk. "I'll bet a cherry pit that the other game escaped or you wouldn't have left it to follow me!"

"Well, I nearly caught you anyhow—next time I will," barked Fox. Chipmunk shook with laughter.

"Fooled again, Fox," cried he. "It wasn't I at all that you nearly got your paws upon but Two-Legs, my friend."

In his surprise at this remark Fox stopped pawing up the ground.

"You wretched little Chipmunk," cried he. "That is a fib and you know it. 'Twas you, you with the bushy tail, that I was after, not that queer little creature that was between you and me. I don't know who that was, but don't try to tell me it was a Two-Legs! How could it be a Human and be only Chipmunk size?"

"That is for you to find out," cried Chipmunk mockingly. "Come, Boy, let's go on to the house and tell Mrs. Tamias how we fooled old Fox!"

Children's Sore Throat

Mothers know that children's sore throats are serious, often leading to tonsilitis, scarlet fever or diphtheria. Also that it is hard to treat because the usual remedy is a gargle and children cannot gargle.

A famous physician's prescription called Thoxine works on new principle—goes direct to the cause not reached by gargles and patent medicines and brings relief within 15 minutes or money back.

And the remarkable thing about it is it contains no iron, chloroform or dope—harmless and safe, pleasant taste. Remember, relief within 15 minutes or money back. 35c, 60c and $1.00. Sold at Bradley's Drug Store, Weimer's and all good drug stores.—Adv.

New York, April 20—While the trend of stock values was upward today, the market as a whole made very little progress, and the price changes were narrow The first quarterly earnings statements of a number of prominent industrial and railroad companies were unexpectedly favorable, and this stimulated investment buying of the prime dividend payers

"Easy money" was also a factor of great importance. While the official call loan rate ruled at 4 per cent, it was possible to get a large volume of speculative funds in the outside market at 3 3-4 per cent.

Speculation in the railroad stocks was confined chiefly to two important groups, the Nickel Plate stocks and the southwestern-merger stocks. New York, Chicago & St Louis (old Nickel Plate was up about 2 points in heavy trading, while Erie and Pere Marquette sold fractionally higher. Missouri Pacific led the latter group, with Kansas City Southern actively participating.

Hudsons Motors' first quarterly earnings statement showed net of $1,026,525, against $2,746,023 in the corresponding period last year The stock appeared in active trading to above 77, the highest price for the stock in its present form General Motors also topped its best previous price, but the balance of the motor stock list was quiet and dull

RULES SALE OF STATION MEANS LOSS OF LICENSE

Decision Gives Federal Radio Commission Effective Control Weapon

Washington, April 20—Broadcasting stations were removed from the speculative market of barter and sale by the federal radio commission today.

Federal licenses will become void on the sale of a broadcasting station, according to an interpretation of the law by Judge I. O. Sykes, of the federal commission

After the sale of a station the new owners will be required to apply to the commission for a license, thus throwing it to the hand of the government a powerful weapon if it should be decided that a reduction in the number of stations is necessary

The ruling means that prior to the purchase of a station the prospective owner will appear before the commission to determine whether he can be assured of a new license to continue operation

DR. ASHBAUGH SPEAKS BEFORE SCHOOL GROUP

Ohio State University Man Appeals to Power of Parents Over Children

Dr. A. S. Ashbaugh of the Ohio State University, was the principal speaker at the meeting of members of the North State Street Community Club last night at the school building.

Dr. Ashbaugh emphasized the power of parents to save not only their own children but everybody's child from wrong-doing by putting joy into their lives instead of eliminating it and by making them develop into healthy, vigorous and honest men and women through their own love, understanding and encouragement.

"It is not a career that instructors desire for their students but the establishment of a firm foundation for character," he said.

A pleasing program of musical numbers was presented by the orchestra of the First United Brethren Church under the direction of Mrs. Minnie Van Asbeck, leader. Miss Eutoka Welch gave two readings and Mrs. L. Woods and Mrs. Rockwell entertained with a vocal duet.

Plans were made for a paper drive in the near future, the proceeds to be used in the Parent-Teacher Council work, and for a penny supper to be held at the school Friday night, May 6. B. J. Shelton presided as chairman in the absence of the president and vice president of the club.

CITY ENGINEER STARTS SURVEY OF W. CENTER-ST

Official Gets Ready To Make Estimate of Street Repaving Costs

City Engineer T. S. Cathers and assistants started work this morning making a preliminary survey of W. Center-st in connection with plans for repaving of the thoroughfare. The paving, regarded as the most important street improvement project planned here in recent years, is scheduled for construction in 1928.

The survey is being made between the Hocking Valley Railway and Oak-st, that being the section which will be paved next year, according to plans recently agreed upon by members of council. This section will also be widened 15 feet to conform with width of the street in the uptown section.

The petition for the improvement filed several weeks ago with council asked for a new paving from the Hocking Valley railway to Main-st but it has been decided not to pave from Oak-st east until 1929. When the east section is paved, it may extend as far as High-st, city officials say.

Finish Survey Today

The city engineer stated this morning that the actual survey up to Oak-st probably would be completed today but that several weeks will be required for drawing up blue-prints and plans. The blue-prints will provide a detailed outline of the proposed improvement, including construction of drainage lines and location of manholes and catch-basins.

Estimates of the cost will be based upon results of the survey and will be announced as soon as the blue-prints are completed. Reports on the probable cost and also tentative assessments against W. Center-st property will then be filed with council.

Before final legislation authorizing the re-paving is passed by council, arrangements will be made with the C., D. & M. Electric Co. for reconstruction of its car tracks on W. Center-st, it is said. The rails are to relaid on a new foundation and the C., D. & M. will pay the full cost of paving between its tracks and one foot on each side.

Favor Reconstruction

W. Center-st property owners are to pay the entire cost of the 15-foot widening and half of the cost of repaving the present width of the thoroughfare, excepting the street railway right-of-way. The other half of the cost is to be paid by the city.

The question of whether the street is to be resurfaced or an entire new paving constructed was discussed at the last council meeting and there was practically unanimous opposition to the resurfacing proposal. Councilman R. E. Prettyman expressed the opinion, however, that both resurfacing and complete reconstruction should be investigated before final plans are decided upon.

City Engineer Cathers believes that it would not be advisable to resurface by using the present paving as a foundation. Due to unusually heavy traffic on Center-st, he informed council, the best plan appears to be a new paving laid on a concrete foundation.

Members of council as well as W Center-st property owners have indicated that they are strongly in favor of the plans suggested by the engineer.

ANNUAL MUSTER DAY EXERCISES ARE HELD

More Than 75 Members and Guests at Meeting in Community Hall

More than 75 members and guests were in attendance at the annual muster day exercises conducted by the local camp of the Spanish-American War Veterans last night at Community Home, S. High-st. Patriotic Instructor Sylvester Larkin gave an interesting address on the subject, "Patriotism" emphasizing the necessity of respect for the flag, and for law and government.

Commander Wilbur Dingler, who presided, gave the address of welcome Mrs. Elmer Bondly of the Betsy Ross Auxiliary, responding. Miss Bernice Howison of Waldo gave a group of readings after which Mr. Bondley was presented in a musical novelty. Mrs. W. C. Michel of Waldo sang two beautiful soprano solos. Reverend Law of Waldo gave the invocation and the Veterans, in unison, renewed the oath of allegiance taken on entering military service at the time of the Spanish-American war.

Following the serving of luncheon, short talks were given by Lieut. Lee Sherfey, Reverend Law and W. C. Michel.

The next regular meeting of the camp will be held next Friday night in the camp rooms at the armory. At that time arrangements will be made for the annual state encampment to be held in Bucyrus the latter part of June.
